We serve you the world.

That you must admit, is service. On a global scale.

But then, we British are rather famous for our service. An agreeable blend of cheerful attention and discretion. Always prompt. And always courteous. Very British, in fact.

And we can indeed let you sample our service all around the World. Aboard one of our brand new 747s, our luxurious 707s, or our rather special British VC10s.

We can fly you to Britain from Anchorage, Boston, Chicago, Detroit, Honolulu, Los Angeles, Miami, New York, Philadelphia and Washington, D.C. And fly you to more British cities than any other airline—London (of course), Belfast, Birmingham, Edinburgh, Glasgow and Manchester.

We can also fly you to Sydney and Melbourne, Australia from New York, Los Angeles or Honolulu. To the islands from New York. Or quite literally around the World. In either direction. For BOAC is the World's largest international airline, serving 80 cities in 53 countries on 6 continents around the World.

Dear Coach Guelker:

Congratulations are in order to you and to all the members of the U.S. Olympic Soccer team for the exciting victory in the North American zone finals. The team's triumph in St. Louis can well mean a new era in American soccer and, needless to say, you and each of your players have my best wishes for a strong showing this summer in Munich.

Sincerely,

The President Reports

by JAMES P. McGUIRE, President
United States Soccer Football Association

It would be my pleasure to tell you by way of this report, that the game of soccer is making great strides in the United States, but you, like I, know better and while the truth is not always palatable and acceptable we will do better if we face up to the truth and the many problems that occur from year to year, and in time eliminate them. We will never be without problems—no organization, whether it be business or sport, is without problems. The number one problem is finance, and our treasury has become somewhat depleted in the last few years, as you well know from recent convention reports. We must face up to the fact that whatever monies we require to keep soccer alive and well must be raised by us, the people of soccer. We have talked fund raising for the last two years with no tangible results. In order for us to put money into soccer, we must find ways and means to get money out of soccer and this is true not only of USSFA, but also in the state associations. We must not enact rulings and regulations that will deter us from making money from soccer.

The USSFA is not the President or the National Commission, it is you, every State association every league, professional, semi-professional, amateur, college and school. Soccer will only grow if all of the branches of the tree are flourishing. There is an undeniable growth in the game at all levels, particularly in the college and junior movement, and there is no doubt in my mind that eventually we will become a great soccer nation. The performance of our Olympic Team is an indication of the growth of our soccer knowledge.

In addition I had the pleasure of attending the College Coaches Convention in St. Louis and was extremely impressed by the enthusiasm of both schools and colleges and the caliber of coaching even in workshop sessions, which is also indicative of the soccer growth. We have no panacea for ultimate success except hard work and dedication at all levels. I sincerely commend and thank all of you for the support you have given me in the past months.

The fact that our new convention was held in Alaska is indicative of horizontal growth in that we are spreading out. Now we must seek vertical growth to put us on a level with other competitive sports in the U.S.A. That will require the best coordinated efforts of all of us in soccer.

best team, in the world's

Hota Take Open Cup

by JOE MARCUS

New York Post, President, Soccer Writers and Broadcasters Association

"Determination and the desire never to quit even when things indeed did look dark."

That's how coach Gordon Bradley summed up the performance of his New York Hota side which walked off with the biggest prize in United States club competition during the 1970-71 campaign when they copped the coveted United States Dewar's Challenge Cup.

Hota, which up until then had always been either a bridesmaid or a member of the wedding party, made it to the altar on May 16 when in Los Angeles they topped the San Pedro Yugoslavians 6-4 in a game that must rank as one of the most exciting in Cup history.

By taking the prize Hota extended the German-American Soccer League's string of Cup championships to five.

In the finale Hota could not have been blamed if some of their players had quit in utter despair because of some great defensive playing on the part of San Pedro fullbacks who pulled three shots off the goal line. On three other occasions a Hota shot hit either the cross bar or the post.

With only 58 seconds left in regulation time it appeared that Hota's dreams of capturing their first ever Cup championship would all come to naught as they trailed the Yugoslavians 3-2. Then suddenly it was a new ball game as Karl Minor knotted the count. In overtime Hota dominated the action getting goals from Minor, Radi Mitrovic and Horst Kneissl while the Yugoslavs had to settle for one lone tally.

"There were times out there that I didn't believe we could pull it out again," said Bradley, "but I never quit on the boys. They had worked so hard to get where they were and this wasn't the first time we had our backs to the wall in the Cup competition."

Hota's drive toward the championship started with a relatively easy 2-1 win over Blau-Weiss Gotschee, and 4-1 over the New York Ukrainians. Both of these clubs play in the GASL and Hota clearly was the best of the loop during the season, as well as in Cup play.

Then came the State finals against the always tough German-Hungarians and the Knitters certainly were up for the battle.

Hota's defense, regarded by many as the strongest in the nation, turned aside several early GH drives but Hota itself was getting nowhere on the attack until with nine minutes gone in the second half Radi Mitrovic found the range for a 1-0 lead. That was the only goal of the contest as the Hota defenders tightened up and thwarted several GH drives.

Next on the agenda was the Eastern semifinals against Tauton of Boston and Hota almost chewed off more than it could handle. With just 37 seconds remaining and the Mass. contingent nursing a 1-0 lead it looked like curtains for Hota. But suddenly along came Winsor DeLano, a man who had not figured heavily in the pre-Cup plans, to tie the score. The first overtime produced nothing in the way of goals from either club but in the second overtime the Hota attack woke up in a flurry as first Minor scored, then Rolf Winter found the range and Klaus Winters put the icing on the cake, 4-1.

To reach the finals Hota would now have to take on Cleveland's Donnaschwaben and although it was a tough battle Hota's class emerged at the end as they won 3-1 on goals by Ceyhan Yazar, Mitrovic and Minor.

That set the stage for the classic come-from-behind Cup finale against the Yugoslavians and the Cup was once again returned to the East where it has been located for most of the previous 56 years.

It's hard to single out any individual for the accomplishments recorded by Hota but goalie Juan Morales and fullbacks Henry Stucky and Bob Newbauer must certainly share in the credit as the trio was indeed stingy when it came to allowing goals.

Rudi Pearce, Bradley and Horst Meyer gave Hota a top trio at the halfback spots while during the campaign the forward line of DeLano, Winter, Minor, Yazar, Kneissl, Mitrovic and Johnny Kerr, who because of NASL obligations was forced to miss the Cup finale, played an important part in making the opposition's defense look miserable.

"It was a team victory and although that statement has been made by many coaches in many sports over the years, "it certainly is true in this case," said Bradley, who went on to pilot the New York Cosmos to a second place finish in the NASL's Eastern Division.

"There were times when the team fell down in one department but we picked up the slack somewhere else. Like the times when the offense wasn't scoring up to its potential but the defense didn't allow the opposition too many good opportunities.

"At other times one man would miss a defensive assignment but suddenly another player would come over from his spot and cover up without us suffering any damage.

"That's what makes a championship team. That — and desire and we certainly had plenty of that."

Those who saw Hota in action during the 1970-71 season can certainly attest to the fact that desire did indeed play a big part.

Kutis Amateur Champions

by HAROLD FLACHSBART

Soccer Editor, St. Louis Post-Dispatch

If you look through the records of champions and runnersup in the National Amateur Cup soccer tournament over the last 17 years, Kutis, the 1971 title winner from St. Louis, is no new name in the listing.

Kutis teams swept to six straight U.S. Amateur Cup championships from 1956 through '61. And Kutis was a runnerup to the Hartford Italians in 1967, and runnerup again in '69 to the British Lions of Washington D.C.

After the 1971 Kutis edition swept through the Missouri state tournament, German-born coach Friedel Geissert said: "We're due to go all the way this year, and we have the talent and determination to do it."

Geissert, who took his team sponsored by Tom Kutis, an undertaker, on a German tour after winning the '71 title, was so right. Kutis had one of its narrowest squeaks in the Missouri final, beating Hamm's Beer, state open cup champion, 2-1, in overtime.

Next test was against the Denver Kickers, and in the mile-high altitude of Colorado, the St. Louis squad showed its fine condition by scoring a 2-1 victory. Kutis was on the road again for the Midwest sectional final but won handily (6-1) over the Green-White team in Chicago.

A highly regarded Saprissa club from Los Angeles, composed mostly of Mexican-Americans, was the next opponent in the National semifinals, and that game was played in St. Louis, on a hot Sunday afternoon in May.

But Bob Matteson, a St. Louis University freshman, scored 10 minutes after the start and Denny Vaninger, fresh from being named to the All-American Junior College team as a striker from Florissant Valley Community College, struck early.

Kutis had a 2-0 halftime edge and the game wound up with Saprissa surprised at the St. Louis team's excellent ball control, because the final was 4-0, with Vaninger adding two more goals in the second half, for the hat trick. Two of Vaninger's tallies were headers.

The championship game with Cleveland's Inter-Italian club was delayed until June 6, and again on the road — in Cleveland — Kutis proved that superior teamwork pays off. They scored two goals in each half to win going away, 4-1, behind the stellar goaltending of Dave Robben, a public school teacher.

Geissert's Kutis kings, combining youth with experience, finished their season with a 26-5-3 record, not counting several exhibitions and two victories in a Polish National Alliance tournament in St. Louis.

The makeup of the St. Louis champions included Vaninger, the Junior College star; Tim Logush, an all-Missouri high school athlete equally at home as halfback or forward, and four players from St. Louis University's 1970 National Collegiate Athletic Association champions — Matteson, Jim Bokern, Jim Draude and Denny Werner.

A team leader up front, as dual striker with Vaninger, was Gene Geimer, later to join to the St. Louis professional Stars in the North American Soccer League.

Robben, a 10-year veteran, added experience in goal, and the backfield included other veterans in Johnny Klein, Steve Auberry and Englishman Derek Crossley, along with Jim Niehoff, another former St. Louis U. standout.

Matteson played both forward and linkman, and along with Wally Werner, another former St. Louis U. All-American helped control the ball in midfield. Bokern, Vaninger, Geimer and Draude were the usual starting forwards, with Joe Leeker and Logush in reserve.

Yes, it was youth and experience blended into a smooth unit by Geissert's astute coaching.

Virtually the same lineup in 1972 — with the exception of Crossley, but other standouts added from St. Louis U. — was dethroned as National champion by Busch, the Missouri Amateur Cup title winner, 3-1.

But a week later Kutis rebounded with 1-0 victory over Big Four Chevrolet, Missouri's '72 Open Cup champion, in a St. Louis League game.

"Our 1971 champions had the speed, the co-ordination and ball control, but mostly desire," said Geissert. "The team with the greatest desire usually wins the top prize.

"And you'll hear from us again — on the National ladder!"

Junior Cup Goes To Seco, St. Louis

by BOB BURNES

St. Louis Globe — Democrat

The SECO soccer team last Memorial Day weekend continued what is a most pleasant habit for St. Louis but a headache for everybody else.

SECO won the national junior soccer championship with a 4-1 victory over Belvedere, Los Angeles in the semifinals and then blanked Casa Bianco of Baltimore, 2-0, in the final at Winnemac stadium in Chicago.

It was the fourteenth time in 20 seasons that a St. Louis team had won the national junior and the ninth time in the last eleven years. For SECO it was a repeat twenty years later. SECO won the national junior in 1951.

All of this is a tribute generally to the cradle-to-the-grave soccer program in St. Louis, starting in the C.Y.C. and parochial high school activities.

Beyond that it is also a tribute to the SECO organization which long has been a friend of amateur athletics in St. Louis. SECO stands for Southern Equipment Company.

"Our company has always been interested in athletics, especially for the youngsters," said Ollie Klosterman, a vice-president who has been closely identified with the program. "We had senior teams back in the forties but since the fifties we have had more fun with a junior program — and it was rewarding when our team won the national."

Coached by Joe Vasquez, the players are recruited almost entirely from high schools in South St. Louis, particularly St. Mary's, one of the outstanding teams in the area in recent years.

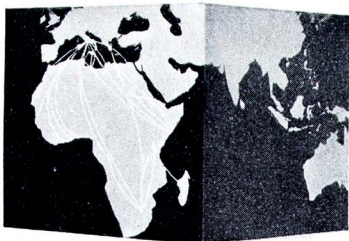

While SECO was favored going into the gruelling two-day competition, the championship was not easily secured.

In the first game on Saturday against Belvedere, SECO built up an early 3-0 lead on goals by Paul Gentile, Ed Heiple and John Roeslein. The game turned rough in the late going and three SECO players, Ron Stockman, Mark Fernandez and Bill Barron, were ejected. SECO thus had to play three men short for the final 30 minutes of the game but won, 4-1.

"It was hard to figure why our guys were ejected," one SECO player said. "We were out in front. All you want to do at that point is avoid trouble, not go looking for it."

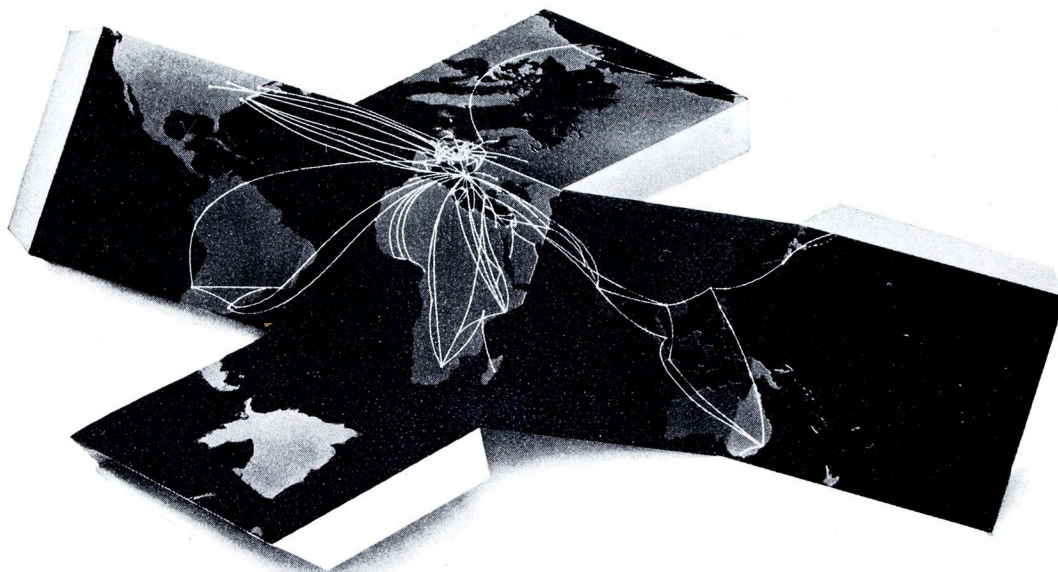

But the next day the three players ejected were barred from the final against Casa Bianco which had won from Extension of New Jersey, 2-1, in overtime on Saturday.

Goals by Len Deschler on a pass from Roeslein and Heiple on an assist from Frank Flesch less than five minutes apart late in the first half did the job and continued the pleasant St. Louis habit.

YOUR POINT OF VIEW ABOUT ALITALIA...

MAY NEED OPENING UP TO A WORLD SIZE.

Some people think we only go to Italy.

That was some twenty years ago. Then we made straight for the top, growing faster than most international airlines.

Doubled our all-jet fleet in only ten years. Carrying up to 21,500 passengers a day. Jumping from number eleven to the sixth largest international airline*.

Once a one-country airline, we now take in over 60 countries. And we fly to more than 100 cities all over the world.

Some of them may be outside your horizon.

They are all within ours.

Lancers Impress In CONCACAF Tournament

by BRUNO SNIDERS

Sports Columnist Rochester, N.Y., Times-Union

They came unnoticed and overwhelming underdogs, but before they left Guatemala City, Guatemala in March, 1972, the Rochester Lancers of the North American Soccer League had made a lasting impression on world soccer.

Thrown together hurriedly amidst the cold and snow of a bitter upstate New York winter, the 1970 NASL champions and 1971 Northern Division titlists stunned the Central, North American and Caribbean Champions Tournament by winning two games and trying another in the six-team round-robin.

Rochester had qualified by winning the 1970 league title and eliminating Pembroke, Bermuda in the first round last fall, and then advanced to the finals by virtue of a forfeit by Guadalajara of Mexico.

The weather had kept their training sessions confined to indoors and the coach, Adolfo Gori, was new. He had played defense the years before the Lancers, but no one really knew how he would fare in trying to mold the various nationalities and styles.

Victorious Opener

He answered any doubters quickly by guiding this patched up team to a stunning 2-0 victory over Transvaal of Surinam in the opening game.

It was an auspicious debut for Gori's newest player, fellow Italian Carlo Dell'Omodarne, who became one of the tournament's most respected forwards. Momo, as this swift right wing is known, scored a goal in that opening match along with Lancer veteran Eli Durante. Rochester was on its way, confident now that it could be a serious challenger.

And it was, right up to the last day, losing to Alajuela of Costa Rica 1-0 on a heartbreaking penalty shot that gave Costa Rica a tie with Cruz Azul of Mexico for the title. They were to play a two-game series, home and home, to decide the CONCACAF representative to face the Uruguayan champions in the next round of the world club championships.

Gori had met a challenge, piecing together the new and the old, his remarkable chemistry overcoming their differences and the lack of an adequate training program.

The Lancers went on to tie Cruz Azul in one of the highlight games of the tournament, before an enthusiastic 40,000 fans who suddenly had taken the Americans to heart. NASL All-Star Manfred Seissler scored the tying goal and Rochester was in first place.

Goals by Seissler and veteran defender Charlie Mitchell (penalty) helped beat Estrella of Netherlands Antilles, 2-0, to set up CONCACAF'S biggest game—Rochester vs. Comunicaciones of Guatemala City.

The bubble burst here, the home team whipping the Americans, 3-1, but not before a heated and well-played battle that was not over until a controversial penalty kick put it out of reach.

The final standings showed Rochester in fourth place, but only one point behind Comunicaciones the third place team. Cruz Azul and Alajuela were first. After the Lancers came Surinam in fifth and Estrella sixth and last.

It was here, ironically, in Central America, where the Americans had opened a new phase in world soccer, accepted as equals among those who hold the U.S. game something less than first division. It was men like Momo, Charlie Mitchell, strong middle defender Peter Short, Frank Odoi, Eli Durante, goalie Claude Campos, Roberto Lonardo, Edner Breton, Gori himself, Carlos Metidieri, the NASL's two-time scoring champion, and Iris DeBrito, who surprised the sceptics and helped close the gap.

The Lancers turned into a team disciplined and precise, Gori carefully plotting every move from his playing position and refusing to fold under the enormous pressure.

Even an American born player, defender Gary Barone of State University of New York College at Brockport, was called into service and proved that the Lancers had not made a mistake selecting him number one in the NASL draft of college players.

Future of Pro Soccer

"This experience," said Lancer President Pat Dinolfo on arrival from Guatemala City, "put aside all those ridiculous assumptions about the inferiority of our game. We proved during the last league season that we belonged when we didn't lose a single international match. Our job now lies in a new and profound effort to put professional soccer in the mainstream of American sports. No team sport has spread so rapidly to every corner of this land, to the kids leagues, the high schools, colleges, and senior programs. The game is everywhere, growing and becoming an ever increasing factor on the sports scene. Professional soccer in this country thus needs to take advantage of this enormous growth with a legitimate program of public relations and support of the amateur leagues that eventually must become the life blood of our game. We told the world an awfully clear message in Guatemala," Dinolfo stressed, "that American soccer, professional and amateur, must be dealt with on equal terms with the rest of the world."

HALL OF FAME 1971

BERT PATENAUDE

At the age of 28 he was called by one journalist "one of the greatest center forwards in American soccer" — and certainly none of his opponents would have disagreed with that description of Bert Patenaude. A prolific scorer throughout the late 20s and 1930s, Patenaude was also a member of the first United States World Cup team, that competed in the tournament in Uruguay in 1930, when he was only 21 years old.

Of French-Canadian descent, Patenaude is a native of Fall River, Mass., and was a member of that city's team that won the National Challenge Cup in 1930 and 1931. In 1930 he scored 5 of his team's 6 goals against the Chicago Bricklayers in the grand final at the Polo Grounds in New York. Patenaude also played for, and scored many goals for, the New York Giants (then owned by Charles Stoneham), the Philadelphia German-Americans, the Passons of Philadelphia, Stix, Baer and Fuller of St. Louis (leading them to a National Challenge Cup win in 1934). In 1935 he was playing for Central Breweries of St. Louis, and again he was instrumental in their winning the Challenge Cup. Appropriately enough, Bert Patenaude finished his playing career back with his hometown Fall River club.

GENE OLAFF

Goalkeeper Gene Olaff's soccer career spanned over 20 years and brought him many of the game's top honours, including many selections for the national team — recognition that he was indeed the No 1 net minder of his day. Born in Bayonne, N.J. in 1920, Olaff took up soccer when he was 12 years old. He played throughout his years at Bayonne High School, and was a member of the Bayonne Rangers. In 1937 he was signed by the Hatikvoh Football Club, of Brooklyn, and helped them to win the National League Cup in 1939. In 1941 he joined the Brooklyn Hispano Football club, and was their goalkeeper when they won the National Challenge Cup in 1943 and 1944. During World War II he served with the United States Navy as a deep sea diver. Between 1945 and 1953, when he retired, he continued to play for Brooklyn Hispano, and was selected to play for the United States against teams from Scotland, Italy, Sweden, Israel, Ireland, Mexico, Germany, and England.

Gene Olaff attended Northwestern University and Temple University, where he completed Police Administration courses. Since 1946 he has been with the New Jersey State Police, and is presently serving as the Deputy Superintendent, with the rank of Major. He has lived in Florence N.J. since 1950, with his wife, the former Doris Stanley of Bayonne, N.J. They have two sons; Gene, 23, serving with the U.S. Air Force, and Gary 21. Both are married.

In 1954 Gene Olaff initiated a Youth Recreation Program in Florence Township, and since that time has served as the President of the Youth Recreation Committee.

Olympic Team Qualifies for Munich

by Gene Edwards, Manager

With the selection process in May, 1970, we dared dream that this time, for the first time, the United States might survive the qualifying rounds and join the sixteen finalists in Munich in '72. Since that time we've experienced both the depths of despair as well as the moment of glory when our dream was achieved in that last game with Jamaica. In both qualifying rounds our survival hinged on the outcome of the final match.

Our success up to this point, while noteworthy, gives us cause to reflect, however, because it is hopefully just another step on the road to bigger things in Munich. We now have the rare opportunity to show the world that we have developed to the degree that we can not only compete internationally, but can hold our own. Even more significant is the fact that we can do it with American school boys. This must have an impact on the future development of the game in America and hasten the timetable of its acceptance as an American sport at last. Development programs shortly will produce an abundance of native talent from which to select our future teams. This is the significance of the accomplishment to date and the promise held for each American youngster exposed to the game.

Careful Scheduling

The record achieved by this team is better than that of any of its predecessors. Thoughtful selection, rigid training, and well planned preparation matches brought the team through the preliminary qualification matches with Barbados and El Salvador. Careful schedule negotiating that permitted the first three matches of the second preliminary round to be played away may prove to be a move as important as any of those made on the field of play. Drawing 1-1 with Jamaica and Mexico in their respective countries earned two valuable points, as well as a psychological lift as we now realized that we could be successful. A 3-2 defeat by Guatemala in that country did not dampen the team's spirit as the boys proved we were strong enough to reverse that setback which we did in our return match in Miami, April 25th, by a

2-1 score. Of note is that this was accomplished with three starters unable to play due to injuries in the previous match. This knowledge built confidence in our young squad.

Best Record Ever

The following statistics researched by Coach Guelker show that the present squad, which has posted two victories, one loss, and three ties in six matches, has produced the best record thus far of any United States Olympic Soccer Team competing since 1924. Since regional qualification rounds began in 1960, this is the first team to advance beyond the first round. Our squad is young, talented and determined. A significant fact is the number of college players comprising today's squad. This speaks well for the development program which is endeavoring to coordinate the state association club player and the college boy into a meaningful cooperative program. The players achieved our goal on the field of play and for this just credit is due them. Not to be overlooked, however, are the organizations and individuals who played a vital role in this achievement also. Encouragement, cooperation and assistance from the Olympic Committee, Olympic staff, chairman of the Olympic Soccer Committee, the United States Soccer Football Association and its staff, state associations and their staffs, the North American Soccer League, its staff and its clubs that sponsored two of our matches, plus individuals who also underwrote training matches, the news media, and others all played a most important role in preparing the team for the eventual outcome. Without this total effort we just could not have been successful and each of these organizations and individuals share in the feeling of pride all of us have experienced. To them we are sincerely grateful and indebted.

OLYMPIC PLAYER SKETCHES

GOALKEEPERS

Shep Messing, native New Yorker, Harvard University senior, All American honorable mention and starter who has done an outstanding job. He has caught the eye of all soccer buffs with his catlike reflexes, superb condition, and fearless calm under relentless attack by top notch forwards. He is one of the reasons for the team's success enjoyed to date. Shep was selected as the outstanding defensive man at the NCAA finals in the Orange Bowl last December.

Michael Ivanow, University of San Francisco graduate, veteran of previous national Pan American and Olympic teams. His size 6'4" and his knowledgeable positional play is comforting to have available in the tough competition the squad consistently faces. He is a native of San Francisco and has been a standout in local league play for years. Was a member of the University of San Francisco Dons which captured NCAA Title in 1966.

DEFENDERS

Casey Bahr, Philadelphia, U.S. Naval Academy graduate, presently completing helicopter training in New Jersey, has been the starting Right Fullback. Casey is young, strong, and a solid performer in the last line of defense. He is physically fit and durable having played most of the matches without injury.

John Bocwinski, left Fullback, native born Argentinian from Kenosha, Wisconsin, and the dean of the squad at thirty-four. An excellent example of fitness and technical ability and a first-class soccer brain. Besides his value as a starter, should the need arise his versatility would allow him to play any position without noticeably weakening the team.

Horst Stemke, co-captain, born in Germany, but did not play soccer until he came to Milwaukee prior to enrolling in high school. Presently Horst is a student at the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay where plays for his school. An ideal center back who possesses excellent ability to diagnose opposing forwards' intentions and a calm, cool defender under pressure. Horst has the quality to conserve energy by making moves that count. He has been a consistent, steady performer and an able field leader. It was his penalty kick, the fifth and last of the series, which eliminated El Salvador.

Neil Stam, co-captain, native New York and presently a high school physical education teacher. Veteran of several national teams and a steadying influence on the team. Always in top physical condition he inspires others to greater heights as he never stops moving. He is a solid defender and opposing forwards realize that they've met their match after going against him for ninety minutes. Members 1967-68 Pan Am and Olympic Teams.

OLYMPIC

Jimmy Zylker, San Francisco, currently recovering from knee surgery and a member of the San Jose State College team. Jimmy has played both full-back and wing during past matches and coach Menendez finds him most at home and a consistent goal scorer at center forward for San Jose. He is a solid built five foot nine in exceptionally good physical condition and can go at top speed the full length of the match. He's a quiet, serious minded, young man devoted to the success of his team.

MIDFIELD

Al Trost, All-American selection from St. Louis University, native St. Louis boy, and possibly the finest of the home-grown talent emanating from the St. Louis youth program. Played on NCAA Championship teams at St. Louis U. and was voted "Most Valuable Player" in 1970 NCAA Tourney. Al, a quiet spoken individual off the field, makes his presence known with leadership qualities so necessary for a winner. Has good speed, deceptive because of his height, excellent ball control, and positional play. Always seems to be everywhere on the field, a tireless mover who consistently winds up in the right place to cap a play. Good head work, and a true link welding together offense and defense. Played on National Junior Team in Bermuda in 1968.

Art Demling, native of St. Louis, graduate of Michigan State where he starred when the school was one of the soccer powers. An exceptionally well-conditioned athlete with defensive skills that complement his scoring ability. A tireless worker who can play several positions, who always appears to be at the right spot when the offense threatens, and who continually pleases the staff with his durability. Several games were saved because of his ability to go all out for the full ninety minutes. Soft spoken—however his play on the fields speaks in anything but hushed tones. Voted to Collegiate All-American team in 1970.

Joe Hamm, a later addition to the team from St. Louis University. Joe's speed and quick reflexes allow him to press the attack with regularity. Highly versatile player who can play many positions well. Through years of playing together, Hamm, Trost and Seerey, have a good understanding of each others style of play which often catches the defense off guard. Member of U.S. National Junior team in Bermuda in 1968. Voted to Collegiate All-America teams in 1970 and 1971.

Walter Ziaja, born in Austria, now living in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, Wally can play both offense and defense. A solid built, rugged, highly conditioned performer, he has good speed, ball control, and the ability to mark a man well. On offense he has an excellent hard shot. He is a solid team man, can always be counted upon to give an all out effort at all times. A diving header which just slipped past the goalpost in the opening minutes of the Jamaican match alerted their defense to his possibilities and he was closely marked thereafter.

Hugo Salcedo, born in Guadalajara, now residing in Compton, California. Presently working on his master's degree in social work at the University of Southern California. Hugo is a fine technician and his early training developed excellent skill in ball control. Does a find job at half-back in controlling midfield play.

FORWARDS

Archie Roboostoff, tall, blond speedster from San Francisco. Archie joined the squad when the staff felt a natural winger was needed. Immediately he proved that he can run, pass and shoot. Ability to move off the mark with great acceleration is his asset that has caught many defenders flatfooted. Another case of good touch and positional play has placed him in the right spot at the right time and continually keeps the defense honest. He scored the tying goal in the first game against Jamaica with a quick burst of speed taking him past the defender to chip in a short pass from Al Trost.

Mike Seerey, recent addition to the squad. Native of St. Louis and star of the St. Louis University National Championship teams in 1970 and 1971. Selected as the outstanding offensive player in the NCAA finals in the Orange Bowl in Miami in 1970 and 1971. Tall, six foot one, with good reflexes and a good shot. Mike has instilled more scoring punch since his arrival; he and Carenza complement each other's style and have a good understanding, having played together locally for years. This was exhibited in Mexico when both worked into the goal area and Mike executed a sharp pass to Carenza who converted to give the U.S. a 1-0 lead at twenty-four minutes. He's quiet on the field, but his size, speed, durability, and shooting ability make him a danger at all times. Voted to the Collegiate All-American team in 1971. Played on U.S. National Junior team in Bermuda in 1968.

John Carenza, St. Louis native, member of Coach Guelker's Southern Illinois University team and starting center forward. John at 6'4" and two hundred and thirty pounds makes his presence felt in every match. For a big man he has good mobility and is an exceptionally good shot with either foot. He has excellent ball control and most defenders have difficulty clearing any balls John decides to head. His presence in the center forward position oftentimes ties up more than one defender, thus opening up opportunities for his teammates. He is unselfish, distributes the ball well, and will be even more dangerous when he decides to take more shots when positioned. Voted to the Collegiate All-American team in 1971. Played on U.S. National Junior team in Bermuda in 1968.

Manny Hernandez, San Jose State College star and outstanding forward. Manny without doubt is the ball control artist of the team. Watching him at work reminds one of the fine professional wing play by members of leading world professional teams. He has speed to go with his outstanding ball control, exceptional split second timing of accurate passing and the ability to interchange positions creating confusion for the opposing defense. He has two good feet, and when pacing himself properly is a constant treat. His goal against El Salvador in that country which brought the tie was one that they will not forget for a long time to come. Manny is a natural wing and his moves attest that he's right at home in that position. Voted to Collegiate All-American Team in 1970.

OLYMPIC

Steve Gay, born in La Paz Bolivia, raised in Costa Rica, where he acquired a good background in the game from age 5 - 14. A graduate of Westmont College, he now resides in Santa Barbara, California. An all round athlete he has played basketball, track, and baseball and did some diving in both high school and college. Named to many all star and tournament teams and his No. 9 Jersey was retired at Westmont following his outstanding career from 1966 to 1970. Steve is tall and a good header. He displays good ball control and good sense for positional play. He has a good shot and has delivered some timely goals in past matches.

OTHERS

There are several other players who may be included in an eligible list; Jack Blake, St. Louis; Mike Margulis, St. Louis; Jack Bell, St. Louis; Joe McGuigan, Bridgeport, Connecticut; and Mike Flater, Denver.

COACHES

Bob Guelker, former St. Louis University coach, where he won national honor five different times, is now the coach at Southern Illinois University, Edwardsville, Illinois. Bob was selected head coach of the squad by the Selection Committee. He is a past president of the USSFA and has coached our national junior team in the past. His many years of college coaching have been most valuable since the majority of the present squad has had college coaching and training.

Julie Menendez, assistant coach, presently coach at San Jose State College where his teams have been nationally rated for many years. A former St. Louis resident, Julie has made his home in California the last twenty-five years. He is a past boxing coach of our Olympic team in the 1960 Rome Olympics. Two of the team's current players, Hernandez and Zylker, play for Julie at San Jose. Besides a thorough knowledge of the many facets of the game, he has the innate ability to relate to young players which is most important to get the most out of a player at all times.

TRAINER

Will Buddell, coach Guelker's right hand man at Southern Illinois University, joined the team for the last two matches and immediately impressed the players with his knowledge and ability to get and keep them well. In a game as strenuous as soccer and played in the type of competition the squad faces, Will is every bit as valuable to the success of the team as the most outstanding athlete on the field. His success in keeping the boys fit will be a key factor in Munich.

MANAGER

Gene Edwards, has the responsibility for all administrative details in the scheduling of practice matches, sponsorship, travel, housing, etc. Active in soccer both as a player and administrator, he is currently serving as First Vice President of the USSFA. A native of Milwaukee he has resided there continually with exception of school and military service where he served in World War II in Marine Corps.

GETTING UP FOR NCAA FINALS

Howard defenders Alfred Desmond and Tony Martin are outjumped by a St. Louis forward in NCAA championship final in Miami's Orange Bowl.

Out of the Wilderness

by PAUL GARDNER

North American Sports Correspondent, The Observer (London).

MIAMI, It is no secret that soccer is the fastest-growing college sport, but this week's National Collegiate A.A. games in the Orange Bowl did reveal something new about the sport: the caliber of play is rising along with the number of participants.

The teams involved—Howard University, St. Louis University, the University of San Francisco and Harvard—all showed that college soccer's time in the wilderness as a deposit for athletes who couldn't make it in other sports is over.

The two semifinals were both decided by one goal, as was the superbly played final in which Howard upset favored St. Louis, 3-2.

The burgeoning strength of college soccer has repercussions for American professional soccer, whose millenium has been oft-proclaimed and equally as oft has obstinately refused to materialize. A major reason for this failure has been soccer's lack of the very thing that gave birth to professional football and basketball: strength in the colleges.

Not too long ago, college soccer was (and in some places, alas, it still is) a crude physical affair of hard running, hefty kicking and that good old sporting standby and panacea, the will to win. Of skill, of artistry, of grace, of subtlety, of all the things that transform soccer from witless kickball into a game of matchless beauty, there was hardly a hint. Whenever one spotted a player who possessed any of the more intricate soccer skills, one could be quite certain he was foreign-born.

Game Is Maturing

One could not be nearly so sure today. The 1971 season has proved to even the most skeptical that college soccer, if it has not yet come of age is maturing rapidly.

"Every year my new players are of higher caliber than the seniors I lose," says the University of San Francisco coach, Steve Negroesco, "and every year when it comes to playing the games, I find the same is true for all my opponents."

If this were simply a matter of recruiting foreign students it would be of no lasting significance, but the vital point is that more and more American born-and-bred players are beginning to appear in the ranks of the better college teams—and they are a far cry from the old kick-and-run style boys.

The University of Pennsylvania won this season's Ivy League title with a team that played attractive, fast-moving, intelligent soccer, and that included only two foreigners. In the sophomore fullback, John Gribbin, Penn has one of the best American-born players that this writer has yet seen.

In talking of American college soccer players, one ought rightly to begin with St. Louis University, which has for years led the way, fielding teams of exclusively American-born (and furthermore they will remind you, all St. Louis-born) players and posting by far the most successful college record.

COLLEGE

In the N.C.A.A. championship, St. Louis was again in the final four, favorite to repeat its 1969 and 1970 triumphs. It was not to be, but in the process of losing a magnificent final to Howard, the St. Louis players made it clear that alongside their undoubted fitness and spirit, they possess skills of highly impressive degree.

The heading ability and clever positional play of centerback Dale Harmon and the all-round brilliance of striker Mike Seerey would have been unthinkable in college players of 10 years ago, perhaps even five years ago.

In short, these boys look like soccer players, they think and they respond and they move in the ways that boys in a hundred other countries have been doing for so long, and to those who have been waiting to see this happen, it is exciting beyond any telling of it.

The new N.C.A.A. champions, the Howard players from Washington, D.C. represent the other extreme of college soccer: an all-foreign team, with most of the players coming from the Caribbean or Africa. The usual objection to such a squad—that it is suppressing the development of native American talent—is considerably blunted in the case of Howard, an all-black school. American blacks do not, to any great extent, play soccer, and were it not for the foreigners there would be no soccer team at Howard. As it is, the Howard players garnered the first major N.C.A.A. title to go to a black university, and they have created interest in the sport among Howard's American students.

Even so, the problem of foreign players remains a thorny one, with the ominous word "quota" being heard from time to time as a means of making sure that American boys are not pushed aside. The Howard coach, Lincoln Phillips, is naturally, opposed: "We have American youngsters playing now in Washington who will be challenging for starting spots in four or five years. They will make the team if they do, because they are good enough, not because they are Americans."

College soccer now stands on the threshold of its most crucial years. As the fastest-growing N.C.A.A. sport, it is beginning to edge up on the big-time glamor. The holding of this season's finals in the Orange Bowl—an arrangement to be continued for at least two more years—is indicative of the trend.

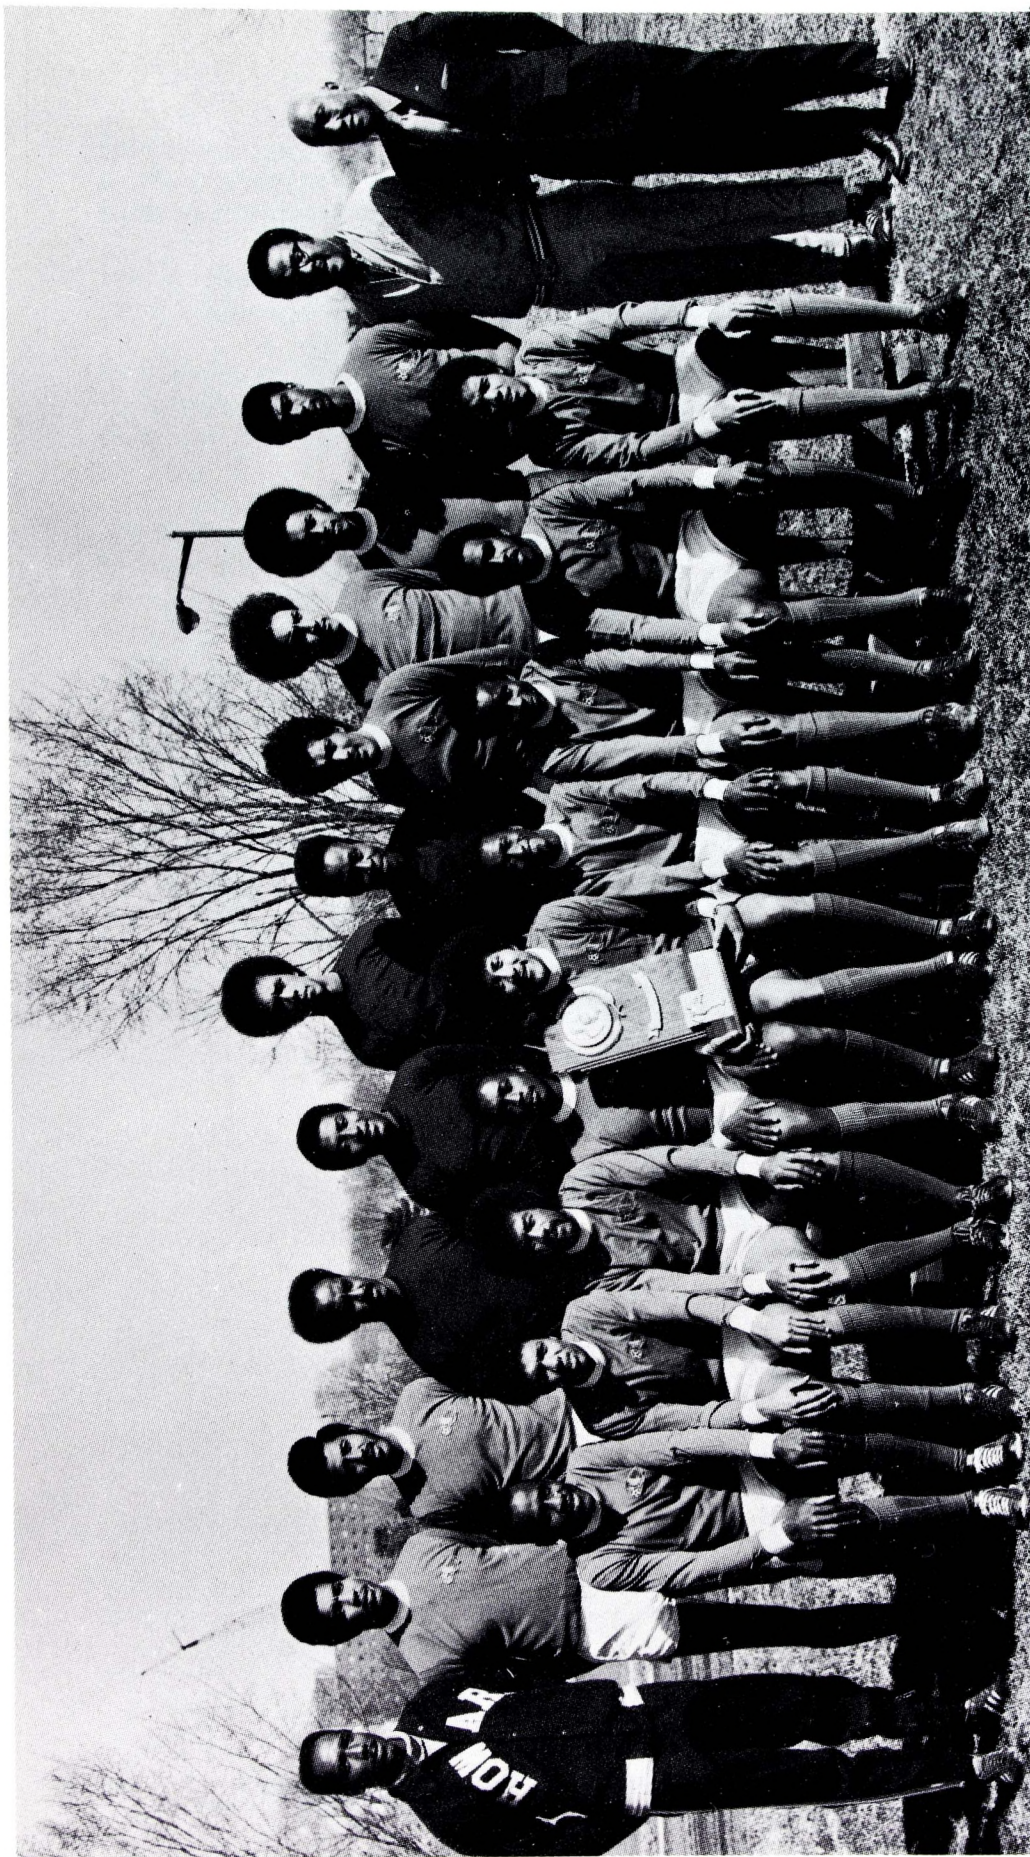

The Standard Counts

Even the recent decision to hold separate university and college division national championships is aimed at long-run improvement though ironically three of the nation's top ranked teams, including Howard, are college-division schools and would therefore presumably be excluded from the major championship.

When all is said and done, it is the standard of play that will be the deciding factor in the future of college soccer. If the game is exciting, the fans will start to gather—as more than 11,000 did when Penn played Harvard last October. Nobody who saw the St. Louis-Howard final last Thursday, described by the North American Soccer League Commissioner, Phil Woosnam, as "far and away the best college game I've seen," will doubt that college soccer is a sport of enormous potential.

When the N.A.S.L. makes good on its decision to hold a college draft this year, another vital link in college soccer's journey to the bigtime will be in place. When the next millennium for pro soccer is announced, it will not, as so often in the past, have both feet planted firmly in mid-air, it will have them securely grounded in the college game.

The Day The Dynasty Died

by DAVE HIRSHEY

N.Y. Daily News Soccer Writer

It was a day for upstarts and whirlpools but definitely not for Billikens.

The "upstart" label was hung on NCAA soccer finalist Howard University in a Thursday morning Miami newspaper story. Intended facetiously, the comment didn't amuse Howard. In fact, it seemed to stimulate the Bisons almost as much as the whirlpool baths in which nine players spent the morning, nursing wounds incurred in a brutal semi-final match with Harvard two nights before.

Later in the day, their aches and pains eased, and their dander up, Howard did what no other team has done for three years—they beat the unbeatable Billikens from St. Louis University, 3-2, to win the national championship in the Orange Bowl.

Riding the crest of a 44-game unbeaten skein capped by a convincing 3-2 semi-final victory over University of San Francisco, the homegrown Billikens appeared well on their way to an unprecedented third consecutive NCAA title. But Howard, an all-black university in Washington, D.C., had other notions—or, more specifically, Alvin Henderson.

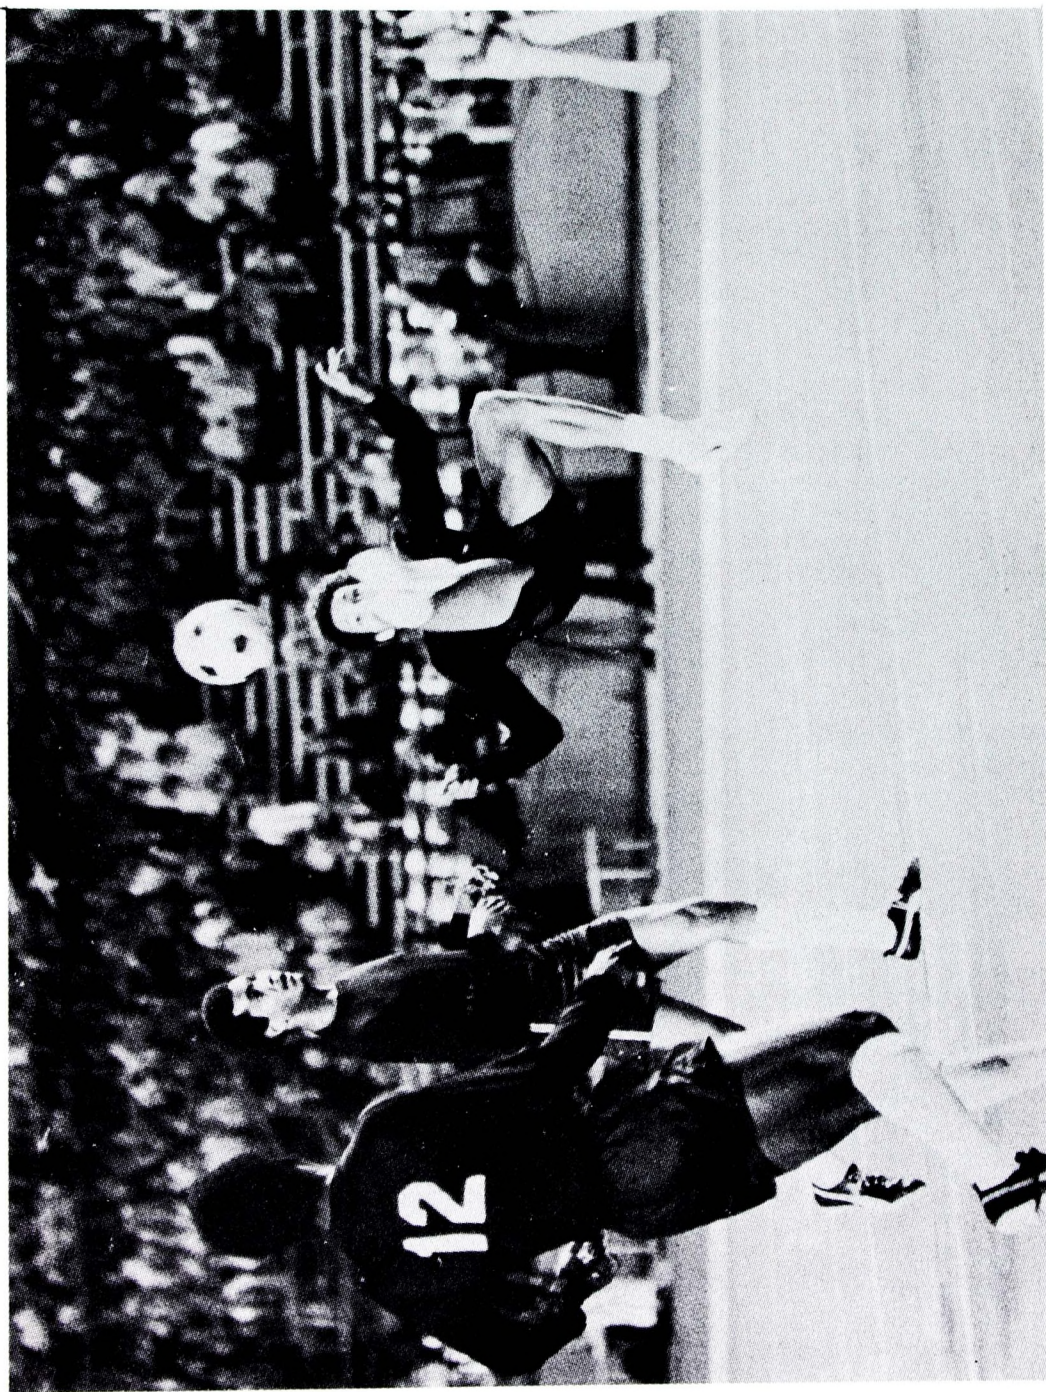

A two-time first team All-American, the 21-year-old chemistry major from Trinidad was the catalyst who set off the explosion that shattered St. Louis' dreams. With the score tied 2-2 one minute into the second half, Captain Stan Smith controlled the ball at midfield and worked a perfect give and go pattern with Henderson that caught St. Louis snoozing. Feigning a shot, Smith drew two defenders and then alertly spotted Henderson all alone to his right. The diminutive forward whose power belies his size, unloaded a blistering drive from 25 yards out. St. Louis goalie Al Steck never had a chance.

Henderson Stars

The records will show that Alvin Henderson scored two goals in the championship final. But what the records will not show is how he scored them. Racing Steck for a long cross ball, Alvin was knocked down in a melee in front of the goal. When he fired the ball past the dazed Billiken goalie to make the score 1-1, he was lying flat on his back. A spectacular goal but one that will probably be forgotten when people talk about the "Game" ten years from now. It is the second goal that people will reconstruct and play back over and over and it is the second goal that Alvin was eager to talk about to the scribes who gravitated to him in the jubilant Howard locker room.

"I usually play up close and don't take such long shots," he offered. "All I wanted to do when Stan passed me the ball was hit it as hard as I could. I wasn't looking to place the ball. It just happened. Maybe it was a hand of fate or something. Things have been going well for us all season and I felt that this tournament was meant for us."

Few, if any, would have agreed with Henderson's observation that Howard was destiny's child after watching St. Louis manhandle San Francisco in the nightcap of

NCAA ACROBATICS

Howard University's Ian Bain clears the ball against St. Louis in NCAA Championship game with a nifty scissor kick as teammates Steve Waldron and Eddie Holder watch admiringly.

Tuesday's semi-final doubleheader. Though the Billikens won by only 3-2, the game was by no means that close. First to note the Billikens' clearcut superiority was losing coach Steve Negoesco. "I don't mind losing to a great team like St. Louis," said USF's personable pilot afterward. "Personally, if they play like they did tonight, I really can't see anybody beating them. St. Louis should win easily against Howard, maybe 4-0 or 4-1."

As it turned out, Negoesco did not exactly prove himself a seer but at the time his prognostications appeared well bulwarked. After a typically unBilliken first half replete with sloppy passing and indifferent movement, St. Louis began going to their wings. And when St. Louis goes to their wings, it is like when the Milwaukee Bucks go to Kareem Jabbar. Things begin to happen. Bad things as far as USF was concerned. All three St. Louis goals originated on the wings. Not without coincidence, all three drives began on the left wing. That is where Mike Galligan, USF's right fullback, hangs out. Galligan, it will be recalled, had never touched a soccer ball until he was eighteen years old. By contrast, St. Louis' Mike Seerey has been playing organized soccer since he was 6. The difference was telling. "Mike had done well all season," noted Negoesco, "but, let's face it, he's just not that good of a soccer player to stop someone of Seerey's ability."

If it's any consolation to Galligan, he has plenty of company. Mike Seerey makes everyone he plays against look bad. An intelligent, powerful All-American forward, Seerey is without question the most consummate collegiate soccer player in the country. There are some like Howard's Henderson and Keith Acqui who may possess more subtle skills and others like USF's Alex Roboostoff who may be more artistic, but for sheer all-around brilliance, even they pale in comparison to Seerey.

Which brings us back to Mike Galligan. Poor Mike Galligan. He had defended superbly against Olympian Mani Hernandez of San Jose State early in the season and had been a regular fixture in the USF lineup ever since. He had made tremendous progress in three years at USF, rising from a second string JV player to co-captain of the nation's No. 2 team. What better way to cap his Cinderella career than with a victory over St. Louis. Galligan tried—he really did—to stop Seerey. But it just wasn't to be.

Seerey Stars

Three times Seerey blew by Galligan, twice for goals, and a third time that would have surely been another goal had the selfless striker not chosen to pass off to a teammate for the score. The frustrated Galligan tried everything including grabbing Seerey's shirt as the blond bomber flashed by him and laid the ball at the feet of Dan Counce for the Billiken's second tally. He had already hammered in a volley from a Jim Draude cross to give St. Louis first blood. San Francisco could have just as well packed it in right there had it not been for Roboostoff. The supreme opportunist that he is, Alex took advantage of two rare moments of indecision by the St. Louis defense to twice bring the Dons from behind and make it 2-2 at half-time. But Roboostoff, who in the absence of Hans Friessen, was forced to shoulder the offensive burden, couldn't do it alone. He had little help on attack and seemed on more than one occasion to be looking for Friessen who was 1500 miles away in Guadalajara, Mexico.

Seerey on the other hand had plenty of people to pass to, people like Denny Hadican who scored last year's winner against UCLA and is still a substitute (which tells you a little about St. Louis) people like Joe Hamm the stylish All-American midfielder who linked offense and defense with surgical precision. So naturally when Seerey bolted past Galligan for the umpteenth time with Hadican breaking down the middle to his right, the SF defense shifted their attention to Hadican who had planted himself in front of the goal awaiting Mike's pass. The pass never came. "I think their defense was a little surprised," grinned Mike. "Their goalie (Bill Rapp) was waiting for the ball to come across to Denny. But heck, with only six minutes left, you have to shoot it." And of course, he did. A 25 yard blast that took off as if it was shot from a cannon and then almost as if Seerey had given it explicit instructions, dipped into the upper right hand of the net. Exit San Francisco, enter Howard.

The Bisons, to be sure, were something short of sensational in their defensive tussle with Harvard. Only their defense lived up to its press clippings. Marked very tightly by Howard's strong defenders, Harvard's vaunted duo of Felix Adedeji and Charlie Thomas were able to penetrate the Bison's penalty area only once and on that occasion Thomas's shot caromed off the post. Meanwhile Howard was being beaten badly in midfield by Harvard's tireless tandem of Russ Bell and Phil Kydes. Forced to resort to a long ball fastbreak game, Howard was at best sporadic. Occasional solo runs by Henderson, Acqui and the clever Ian Bain elicited a few gasps from the crowd but were inevitably turned away by the ubiquitous Shep Messing (who was later accorded the defensive MVP award). The Crimson goalie who plays with the reckless abandon of a Kamakazi pilot was physically punished for his efforts by the fast moving, hard charging Howard forwards. Unruffled and remarkably self-confident, Messing refused to allow himself to be taken out when Henderson caught him flush in the head after he had dauntlessly thrown himself on the Howard's forward foot to save a certain goal. Perhaps a little groggy from the blow or, as he insisted later, under the impression that Howard was clearly offside, Messing hardly flinched when Bain's header beat him six minutes from the end. Harvard vehemently disputed the referee's decision that Howard was onside and lost both the debate and the game.

Howard had won but the Bisons had not exactly wooed anybody. Asked what had impressed him most about Howard, Negoesco cracked, "I really liked their band," a reference to the Bison band that had enlivened the festivities with some rollicking numbers.

Tribute To Billikens

It was the best line of the tournament until Howard coach Lincoln Phillips paid heartfelt tribute to St. Louis at a banquet before the finals. "I watched St. Louis play and I think they have a great team," he deadpanned. "I'm very much impressed with their center forward, Seerey." Phillips paused. An impish grin was beginning to crease his handsome face as he slowly turned toward Keogh and chortled, "and I'd just like to wish St. Louis the worst possible game they every played."

But in the end what it all came down to was not St. Louis' gifts or Henderson's two gems. It was one missed shot, a shot that could have turned the game around, a shot that will haunt Mike Seerey all winter. Seerey had already scored three textbook goals in the tournament and when he maneuvered past two Howard defenders with six minutes remaining and found himself 25 yards out with only the goalie to beat for the equalizer, it was a carbon copy of his winner against USF.

Only as Seerey painfully found out, lightning doesn't strike twice. Like the shot that eliminated USF, the ball rocketed toward the upper right hand corner of the goal. But this time, it didn't dip. Seerey must have known it the instant he struck the ball. Against USF, he raised a clenched fist aloft to signal the victory. On Thursday, he hung his head and kicked the ground. When they announced his name as the tourney's offensive MVP, Seerey was sitting in front of his locker head in hands, unable to accept what had happened.

The Billikens had never been prepared for defeat. They didn't know the meaning of the word. "Lose?" remarked St. Louis' inspirational leader and talented fullback Mark Demling, "No, it's never really occurred to us."

Maybe the "upstarts" had done St. Louis a favor after all.

THE USSFA NATIONAL COACHING SCHOOL

by AL MILLER

Soccer Coach, Hartwick College, N.Y.

For the past eleven years I have been driving all over the East to attend coaches' clinics. This seems to be a routine for all young coaches who want to improve their knowledge of the sport they coach. As I reflect back over the clinics I attended, many friendships were established with fellow colleagues and much information was collected. New ideas, new wrinkles for recruiting and promotion, and many new drills were added to my coaching scheme. Most of the clinicians were the same faces and almost always the clinics consisted of lectures.

Then, two summers ago, I drove to Providence, Rhode Island to attend the USSFA National Coaching School, assuming that this would be just another clinic. I should have known better since the man in charge was Dettmar Cramer. I had met Dettmar and worked with him at the Eastern Jr. Olympic Development Camp in

ONE CAVITY COLGATE COULDN'T PREVENT

1968 and found him to be a coaching genius with young boys. He has a certain magnetism about him that really got to the boys and myself.

I checked into the Moses Brown School, got my room and a schedule. A quick glance at that schedule was enough to alert all of us that this was going to be different. We began on Sunday morning at 7:00 a.m. with breakfast. I knew some of the coaches attending, but many strange faces were present. At 8:00 a.m. we attended the first lecture in the classroom. In that first two hour lecture, Dettmar proceeded to cast his spell over us just as he did the junior players.

We then reported to the soccer field for our first on-the-field session. I thought I was pretty fit but soon found out differently. He continued to push us with expertise like I have never experienced. Just when I felt my body couldn't go any more, he would stop and make a coaching point. In those two hours, I was storing my brain full of new approaches and ideas. The lunch break finally came and we all struggled to the showers and on to the dining hall. Although I wanted to go to my room and rest my weary body, I found myself writing down in detail every routine and coaching point from the last session. We put in four more hours on the field in the afternoon and after dinner attended another two-hour lecture. This ten hour day routine continued for six more days and by the end of the week twenty-five of us were as close as any team I had ever been associated with. We were physically fit, and I couldn't wait to use the material I had collected on paper and in my brain. The course took every detail of coaching into consideration and it was a total coaching experience. Some failed to become certified but all left with an immense feeling of accomplishment and pride.

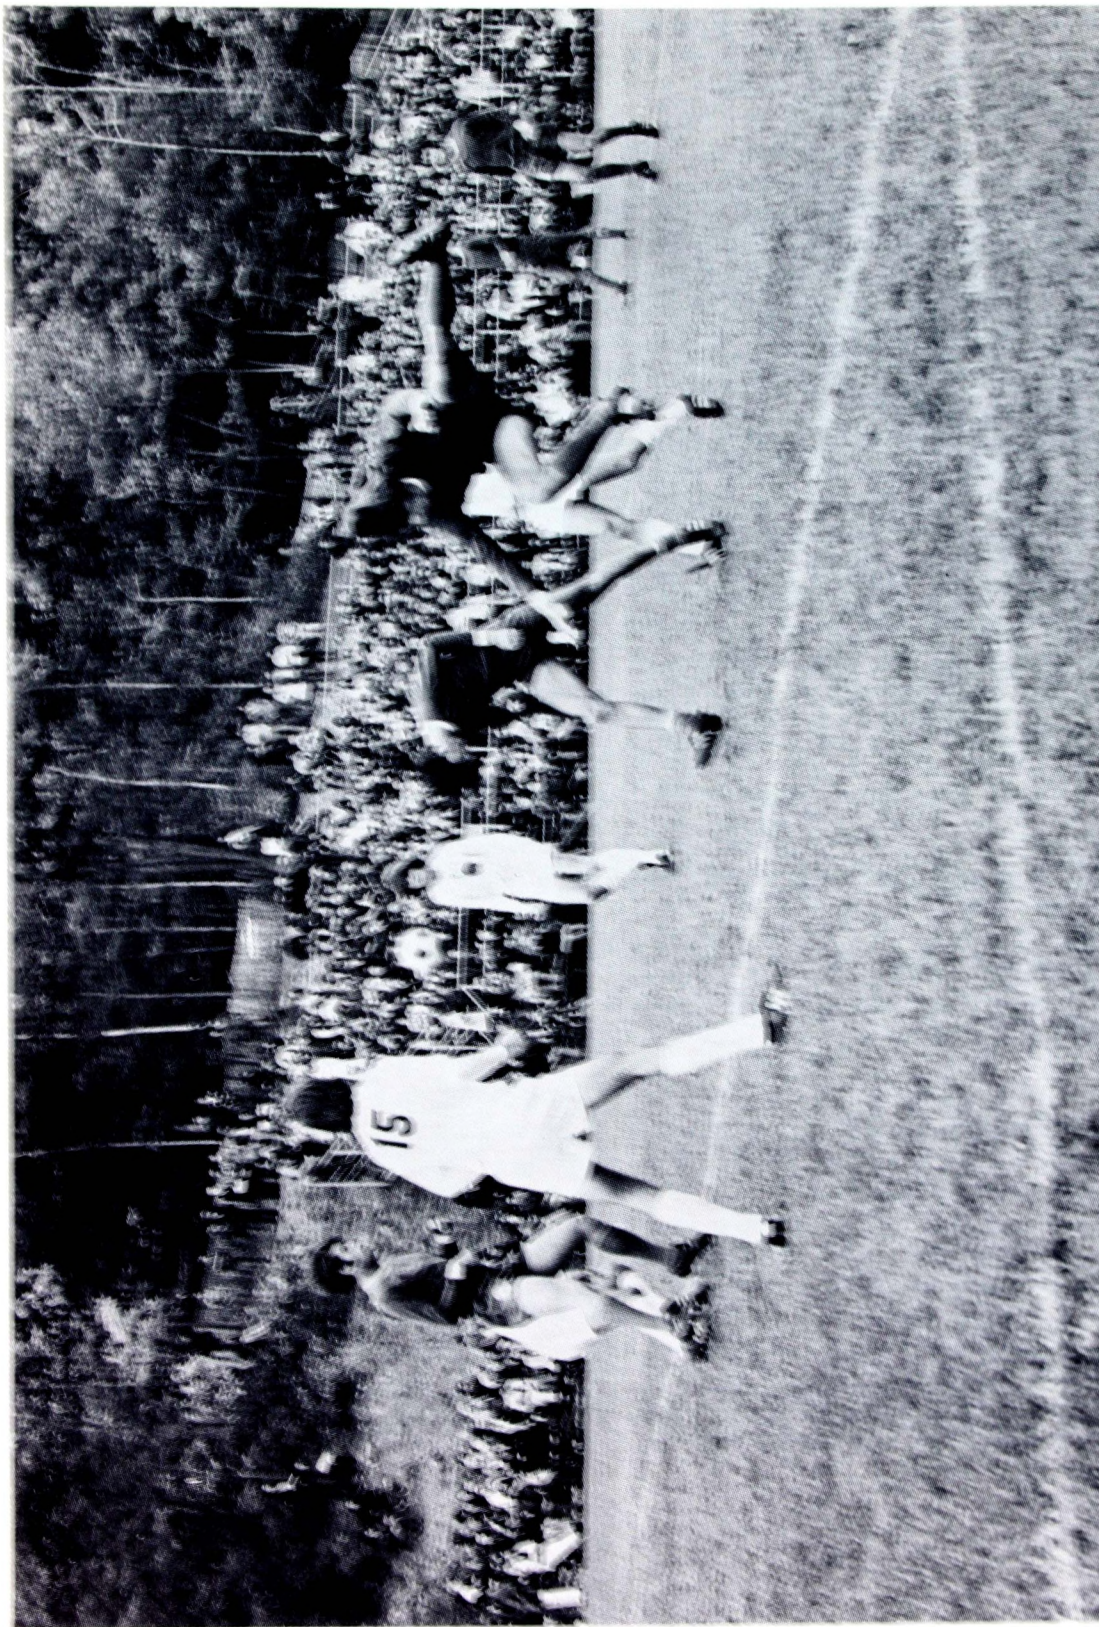

Hundred Years of Coaching

To have an opportunity to work under Dettmar Cramer is an unique experience, to put it mildly. I am now fully convinced that all of us have benefited from his experience: as he stated, "I bring you a hundred years of soccer coaching." He is a master teacher and lecturer. I am most certain that the country's soccer coaches would explode as a profession if they could all spend one week with this man. The coaching school was an unprecedented experience in soccer for myself and my colleagues. I can't think of one other significant development technique that could improve on this.

Since that week in Providence, I returned last summer for the advanced course and continued my own little development program. In addition to that school I was fortunate enough to assist Dettmar at his schools in New York, Chicago, Colorado, Seattle and Los Angeles.

The only weakness I can find in this coaching school is that some of the people who get certified, believe that they have become a coach in one week, and that they know all the answers. I guess these characters will always be harmful to our coaching system, but I think they will diminish as our certification continues.

This school is progressive, educationally speaking, and is a must to anyone who wants to call himself a coach!

"JOE BARRISKILL CUP"

A YEAR OF CHANGE

by BRIAN STEWART

1971 emerged as a year of significant change in the American Soccer League, beginning with a marked realignment of franchise holdings.

The previous year (1970) had seen the league operate minus two of its most powerful teams — the Washington Darts and the Rochester Lancers, which had switched their allegiance to the N.A.S.L. New York Inter was suspended and did not compete that year, leaving only 5 teams in one division compared to the 8 competing in two divisions in 1969.

At the close of the 1970 season the Philadelphia Ukrainians moved over to the German American League, the Syracuse Scorpions fell by the wayside and the Newark Sitch were unable to commit themselves due to their inability to find a suitable playing area.

The original summer league of 8 teams in 1969 was now left with only 2 (Boston Astros and Philadelphia Spartans) lined up for the 1971 campaign and seemingly the A.S.L. faced a disastrous fall after nearly 40 years as a professional soccer organization — the oldest in the United States.

Then during the winter months new life began to appear in the A.S.L. through the untiring efforts of Eugene Chyzowych, who was then the first vice president and chairman of the expansion committee, and business manager Earl Saurman and secretary Ruth Saurman.

A new group of soccer enthusiasts invested in the dormant franchise of Syracuse, New York, while a new club, the New York Greeks, who are associated with the multi-champion Greek American Club of New York, took over the vacated Inter franchise. A new franchise was awarded to a northern Virginia group and suddenly the League came alive again.

All was still "not well" however, for most of the 5 teams found great difficulty in obtaining playing fields which in turn presented many scheduling problems.

In June president Alexander Hemphill was forced to resign due to other business commitments, as was business manager Earl Saurman. Ruth Saurman, secretary, also resigned for health reasons. Gene Chyzowych, a long time member and active participant of the league board of directors, was elected to take over the presidency, and Brian Stewart, publicity director of the former Syracuse Scorpions in 1969 and 1970, and P.R. director of the new Syracuse Suns, was elected secretary and given the responsibility for League promotion and publicity.

Everett Germain, attorney and co-owner of the Virginians, was elected to fill the vacated 1st Vice President position, while the remainder of the board, Alex Angelou, second vice president, John Bertos, third vice president, and Ted Marchese, treasurer, who were elected earlier in the year, remained at their respective posts.

The first and major task for Gene Chyzowych was to set in order the scheduling problem so that the 1971 campaign could be completed with as few mishaps as possible.

SHUTTING OUT THE SUNS

Stamatis Maliarakis, goalkeeper of the New York Greeks, leaps high to thwart a Syracuse Suns threat on goal. The action was a part of the first game between two new 1971 teams in the A.S.L. Nelson Bergamo is number 9 for the Suns.

The League still had some problems, but finished the season on time and in good order with the New York Greeks winning the championship in their first season of play.

In July the Annandale Boys Club of Northern Virginia donated to the A.S.L. a fine trophy in honor of retiring U.S.S.F.A. Executive Secretary, Joseph J. Barriskill, who for many years was a vital part of the A.S.L. from the playing field to the presidency. The trophy, named the "Joe Barriskill Cup", was presented to Mr. Barriskill at the U.S.S.F.A. convention in Atlantic City by Everett Germain, founder of the Annandale Boys Club, and Joe Kinslow, partner with Germain in the A.S.L. Virginia franchise. The "Joe Barriskill Cup" is now the League's championship trophy and was awarded to the New York Greek team at the League's annual awards dinner in September.

Charlie Ducilli of the Philadelphia Spartans an American born player and a product of American schools finished the season as high scorer, with 11 goals to his credit, while Bob Hatzos of the Greeks was voted the League's Most Valuable Player of the 1971 season.

John Bertos, General Manager and coach of the Boston Astros, was voted Manager of the Year after many years of producing great teams representing the New England area in the professional ranks.

The 1971 accomplishments of the A.S.L., however, were not evidenced on the field of play as much as they were in the meeting rooms where the executive board moved forward with new concepts to revitalize the A.S.L. expansion program and development of soccer throughout the northeastern part of the country.

The board's decision to accept an affiliation with the Schaefer League of New Jersey, which has on its roster a bevy of teams ranging from juniors up to first-class amateur, is an example. There are no doubts in the minds of all connected with the A.S.L. that this move to bring under its wing one of the fastest growing youth organizations in the United States will do much to promote the professional game. All of the officers and personnel working on this project are most anxious to establish a farm system through the New Jersey group and look forward with great anticipation to the years ahead.

The A.S.L. is also attempting an expansion of its activities through the formation of a Midwest Conference under the guidance and leadership of Dr. Nick Capurro.

Dr. Capurro, who is a medical doctor, is Vice President of the Ohio-Indiana Soccer League and a former professional player. He concentrates his efforts of developing junior and senior soccer in the Cincinnati area and was recently appointed Midwestern Regional Coach by U.S.S.F.A.

Working through the Ohio-Indiana League and U.S.S.F.A., the A.S.L. is confident that this midwest area will have ready for League play in the summer of '72 teams from Cleveland, Dayton, Detroit, Cincinnati, Toledo and Fort Wayne.

1971 — THE YEAR OF DALLAS TORNADO

A YEAR OF STABILITY

For the first time in its six year history the North American Soccer League will be opening a new season with the same teams which completed the previous one. This may not seem particularly impressive, except for the fact that stability, which is such an essential ingredient to the eventual success of the NASL, appears to have found a place in the League's structure.

With a year of experience behind all of the clubs, the NASL is confident that hopes of expansion to sixteen cities will be enhanced by this year's performance.

The fourteen game regular season schedule opened April 29 and will extend into mid-August with each of the clubs playing additional games against top foreign opponents of their choosing. The playoffs open the weekend of August 19-20 with a one game semifinal to be played to determine the draw for the one game final the weekend of August 26-27.

With several new faces to bolster their rosters, the New York Cosmos, Toronto Metros, and Montreal Olympics will provide considerably stiffer competition to the established and successful Dallas Tornado, Atlanta Chief and Rochester Lancer squads. The Dallas Tornado, which surprised everyone by winning the 1971 NASL Championship, are the favorites in the Southern Division with the Atlanta Chiefs and Miami Gatos capable of making a strong challenge for the top spot. The Gatos, only six months removed from Washington, D.C., have received a warm reception in the vacation city. Their line-up, as well, will be highlighted with new faces in addition to the established core which brought home the 1970 Southern Division Crown and narrowly missed the 1971 playoffs.

The St. Louis Stars, laden with American born talent, experienced one of their most successful seasons in 1971. If the Stars are able to perform for an entire season as convincingly as they did the second half of the 1972 campaign they could challenge their more seasoned rivals for a playoff berth.

The Rochester Lancers, fresh off an impressive showing in the Concacaf Club Championships in Guatemala, remain the heavy favorite to retain the Northern Division crown for the third consecutive season. The New York Cosmos who pressed the Lancers before fading late in the season should provide their stiffest challenge; however, Montreal and Toronto have virtually new rosters and could provide some surprises.

Tornado Sweeps Up NASL Title

by TEMPLE POUNCEY

Dallas Morning News

Battling uphill for every step, the Dallas Tornado won its first championship in the 1971 North American Soccer League season.

The climax came September 19 at Atlanta Stadium when the Tornado defeated the Atlanta Chiefs, 2-0, in the rubber game of their best-of-3 championship series. But the decisive moments were many on the road to the title.

As the regular season closed, Dallas missed out on its first division crown ever by one point, as the Chiefs took the title in the last game. The Tornado had fallen but two points short of winning the NASL's International Cup.

Dallas coach Ron Newman had to finish the regular season and go into the playoffs without his two top scorers: Kirk Apostolidis, who signed to play in Greece, and Tommy Youlden, who returned to the team which had loaned him for the summer, Portsmouth of England.

Then on the eve of the postseason opener, Newman suspended his No. 1 goalkeeper, Mirko Stojanovic, for disciplinary reasons. Stojanovic had not only led the league in goal average but had broken the NASL record with an 0.70 average.

In Stojanovic's place, Ken Cooper, just eight weeks removed from a knee operation, went into the nets. Unexpectedly, Cooper found himself in the eye of a hurricane as the playoffs began in Rochester. His one-game fill-in turned into the longest game in the history of professional soccer on this continent, 176 minutes of playing time.

The Lancers won it, 2-1, on a goal by the league's leading scorer, Carlos Metidieri, almost four hours after the opening whistle. So the Tornado was a game down in the opening series and had to win two in a row to stay alive.

Stojanovic returned to the field for the second game, at Dallas' Franklin Field, and the Tornado regained its balance with a 3-1 victory on goals by Phil Tinney, Tony McLaughlin and Luiz Juracy.

Once again the teams went to Rochester, where the Lancers had not lost all season on the Aquinas Stadium turf. Again, they battled into overtime, struggling through 148 minutes of playing time, but Bobby Moffat won the series for the Tornado with a 15-yard goal on a through pass from Jimmy Benedek.

By this time, Dallas had played the equivalent of four and a half soccer games in eight days. Atlanta, which had polished off the New York Cosmos in two games without conceding a goal, was fully prepared and played a tight, careful defensive game as the final series opened on the Chiefs' home pitch.

For the third time in four games, Dallas was forced into overtime, and it was too much. After 34 minutes of sudden death, Boy Boy Motaung scored for Atlanta, and again the Tornado was one down, needing to win two in a row.

Back in Dallas Sept. 15, old pro Juracy scored two goals and Tinney and McLoughlin one apiece as the Tornado drew even with a 4-1 victory, wiping out an early 1-0 Chiefs lead.

TORNADO WINDMILL

Dallas Tornado forward Luiz Juracy shoots on St. Louis goal with a scissor kick as startled defender Steve Frank (15) looks on.

The title game was to have been played Sept. 17, a Friday, but Hurricane Edith soaked most of Georgia and forced a postponement until Sunday.

The rest didn't hurt the weary Tornado legs, and when the deciding game began, Dallas took charge quickly. With only 2:34 elapsed, Mike Renshaw scored on a header off a Tinney cross, and Dallas never yielded its margin. Moffat's rebound shot after a header by McLoughlin made it 2-0 at halftime, and Stojanovic and his veteran fullback line throttled every threat thereafter.

Coach Ron Newman gave full credit after winning the cup to his defensive players, the back line of John Best, Dick Hall, Gabbo Gavric and Oreco, and the midfield pair of Roy Turner and Ray Bloomfield.

It was Newman's first championship as a coach. When he had taken over the Tornado in late 1968, it was dead last. The ascendancy was complete.

ONE OF THE BEST

NASL All Stars: Metidieri Repeats as MVP

NEW YORK, N.Y. SEPTEMBER 3, 1971 — Diminutive Carlos Metidieri, the 19 goal "striker supreme" for the Rochester Lancers and winner of the TWA Goal Getters Cup for the past two seasons, was voted the North American Soccer League "Player of the Year" for the second consecutive season in the Sporting News annual poll of league players and coaches.

In a joint announcement with the Sporting News, NASL Commissioner Phil Woosnam commented, "To have won all the individual honors in consecutive seasons, against such outstanding competition, is a remarkable achievement. If his fellow professionals choose to recognize his ability in such a convincing manner, you can be certain that the honor is most deserving. Carlos obviously has talent which compares very favorably with some of the finest players in the world."

The "Rookie of the Year" award went to Randy Horton, the New York Cosmos' 6 ft., 4 in. high-scoring center forward. The twenty-four-year-old Horton, presently completing a degree in Economics at Rutgers University, netted 16 goals for the Cosmos to finish as the runner-up to Metidieri in the goal scoring race.

The two leading goalscorers are joined by Kaiser Boy-Boy Motaung (Atlanta Chiefs) and Manfred Seissler (Rochester Lancers) to form a most impressive striking force for the All-Star 4-2-4 formation. At midfield the NASL players and coaches picked American World Cup standout Siggy Stritzl (New York) and Dragon Popovic (St. Louis).

Mirko Stojanovic (Dallas) the league's leading goalkeeper for the second time in five years was the top choice to guard the nets while his Dallas teammates Dick Hall and John Best were joined with Willie Evans (Washington) and Peter Short (Rochester) to make up an extremely formidable defense.

Commenting on the overall strength of the league, Woosnam added, "Twelve months ago, an NASL All-Star Selection put up a tremendous display in Chicago when losing 4-3 to Santos of Brazil due to a Pele-inspired goal in the final 90 seconds. Our playing strength has improved considerably this season and I am convinced that we could develop an all-star squad of tremendous potential. After a concentrated period of training, these players could be molded into a team good enough to hold their own and even defeat some of the major teams in the world."

In announcing the All-Star selections, the Sporting News also revealed the names of an additional 17 strongly supported nominations, which illustrates the tremendous depth in the quality of players registered with NASL clubs. Of the 22 players selected on the first and second teams, five play for Rochester, three each for Atlanta, Dallas, New York and Washington, two for St. Louis and Montreal, and one for Toronto. The seasonal record of the eight NASL clubs in winning 30%, tying 25% and losing 45% of the 32 games played against major league clubs from Brazil, Italy, Greece and Scotland is added confirmation of the rapidly improving high standard of play.

NASL in Canada

By JOHN IABONI

Sportswriter, The Toronto Sun

The building of soccer in the Montreal or Toronto areas is not going to occur overnight, nor after one season in the North American Soccer League.

But with a booming minor league soccer program in the provinces of Quebec and Ontario, Montreal general manager Jim Andrews and Toronto Metros' general manager Jack Daley are convinced of completing the soccer pyramid in five years. Toronto is an enlightening example of what hopefully will be characteristic of major Canadian cities in the coming years.

"After an absence of two years from professional soccer in Toronto, John Fisher (president of Pro Soccer Limited) and Bruce Thomas (a Toronto attorney) decided there was a need to stimulate the whole minor-league soccer process by offering youngsters of 18 and 19 years old place to further their skills," Daley said.

PIERCING LANCER DEFENSE

St. Louis player-coach Casey Frankiewicz attempts to slip past Rochester Lander defender Roberto Leonardo while their teammates look on.

"As it stood then, kids had an alternative of selecting either an ethnic semi-pro league or the amateur Toronto and District leagues.

"Now with the Metros we're not trying to work miracles in a short span of time, but we'll survive over the past efforts of organized pro soccer in this city because of our strong minor-league base. In five years Toronto will have a major Canadian soccer team capable of holding its own against any team in the world."

In 1961, several prominent Toronto individuals formed the six-team Eastern Canadian Professional Soccer League, but by 1966 the ECPSL suffered at the gate and withdrawal of several teams forced the loop to fold.

It was then that Bill Cox, founder of the International Soccer League, contacted Joe Peters, a Toronto real estate man and important individual in the ECPSL Italia organization, about the viability of Toronto as a pro franchise.

A year later, Peters and the Toronto Falcons made their appearance in the National Professional Soccer League. With the merger of the NPSL and the United Soccer Association on December 13, 1967, the Falcons joined the North American Soccer League, a 16-team, four-division unit for the 1968 season.

"It had great possibilities, but they never developed," recalled Daley who handled public relations and business for the Falcons. "The teams exceeded their budgets in trying to recruit big-name European players for top dollars.

So with the folding of eight teams after the initial season and Baltimore and St. Louis the nearest of the remaining teams to Toronto, the Falcons management also pulled out in 1968.

The following season the NASL operated with five clubs (Baltimore, Atlanta, Kansas City, St. Louis and Dallas) while departure of Baltimore in 1970 brought Washington (now Miami) and Rochester into the six-team outfit for that term.

"The league just kept getting stronger and stronger and while Kansas dropped out for 1971, the NASL convinced Toronto and Montreal and New York to join," Daley said.

"Talk now has Philadelphia and Chicago as additions for 1973 meaning only the west coast is missing from making the NASL a complete North American representative."

The Metros signed former Scottish International Graham Leggat as field general for the 1971 term and they played exciting soccer, but missed the playoffs with six wins, ten losses and eight ties.

Pele Packs Them In

Average attendance for home games was an encouraging 5,900 while over 24,000 jammed Varsity Stadium to see Pele and his Santos of Brazil team-mates play Bologna of Italy.

Off-season work is a reason for optimism as a Metros' Booster Club has kept soccer alive in the cold winter with movie and personality hot-seat get-togethers.

Daley hopes to sell at least 1,000 season tickets for the coming schedule and the club has already sold 452 without a strenuous publicity campaign.

"Ours is a long range program," Daley said. "Last year 107 season tickets were sold without any promotion. Now look at us — we're ahead of our target. Just watch us after five years."

With a promise of that nature, Daley can certainly expect Toronto's highly soccer-oriented public to make sure professional soccer is in Canada to stay.

FARM TEAM IN ALASKA?

ALASKA

Continuing our goal to make soccer the biggest sport in the biggest state of the Union, we carved another notch on our totem pole with the 1971 soccer season. This in spite of our short summers and our very recent entry into the soccer game in this northern state.

The Association accomplished a great deal this last season, especially on the junior level. We formed a junior league with nine teams of boys ranging in age from nine to thirteen. We even went Women's Lib! We had 43 girls practising with the boys, the girls coming from the fourth to sixth grades.

After 27 games, the final standings were:

First — Pepsi Cola Soccer Team

Second — Bi-Lo Soccer Team

Third — New York Cosmos of Anchorage

For the third consecutive time our Anchorage All-Stars captured the Arctic Inter-City trophy. This is the trophy up for grabs between teams from Alaska, Whitehorse and Mayo, Yukon Territory, and Canada. Each year one game is played in Alaska and a return match in Canada.

Visitors from Hawaii

For the first time in our short history, we had another state association come to play our Alaska boys. Hawaii sent up a young, aggressive team, the Honolulu Internationals, twice winners and twice runners-up in the Hawaiian championships. The youngsters tied Alaska's all stars 2:2 in the first game and walked off with the second, 2:0.

Final standings for the Anchorage Senior Soccer League for 1971 were:

First — G.S.C.A. of Anchorage

Second — Gaslight Soccer Club

Third — First National Bank Soccer Club

The highlight of our year was getting the unanimous vote of the U.S.S.F.A. Council for hosting the 1972 convention.

CALIFORNIA-NORTH

What was once called a "rapid growth" of soccer in California last year turned into an explosion in the Northern California soccer region. The California Soccer Football Association-North is now the governing body in the northern half of the state and a streamlining of the administrative tasks has been accomplished.

But even this division of duties within California has barely kept up with the tide of soccer enthusiasm. Over 15,000 players are active in organized soccer, with an impressive 7,400 involved in developing the future of California and United States soccer within the youth program.

The media present the usual problem of slight coverage of the sport. But the spectacular growth of soccer in the area is breeding increased interest, and the press is gradually hopping on the bandwagon. A UHF television station has scheduled regular Saturday afternoon coverage of local soccer.

American players are coming from the colleges and development programs in large numbers. It is a tribute to the enthusiastic and productive coaching of this area that four Northern Californians are serving soccer and the United States as members of the U.S. Olympic squad. Jim Zylker, formerly of the Vikings in San Francisco, played college ball at Canada Junior College in Redwood City, and is presently at San Jose State College, where his mentor is Julie Menendez, a coach of the Olympians as well. Manny Hernandez from San Jose State is also on the Olympic team.

Archie Roboostoff has shown excellent form for the Olympic squad, and has contributed his talents to the Concordia first division club in San Francisco. Roboostoff's Concordia teammate Mike Ivanow is a goalkeeper for the Olympians.

Otey Cannon, a San Francisco native who earned numerous honors for San Francisco City College and Chico State College, was drafted by the Dallas Tornado of the North American Soccer League.

The CSFA-N board of directors has some new faces: Ted Sysling is in the President's chair, youth director Don Greer is the Vice-President, and Clay Berling is Treasurer; Andres Camacho and Frank Szantho have also been elected.

Referees, under the leadership of Joe Spiegelman, have been striving for improvement both in quality and quantity. Clinics abound, with FIFA Instructor Diego De Leo donating his services for a week, along with other capable officiating experts.

On the amateur level, Concordia has reigned supreme in San Francisco over the past season getting exceptional performances from the aforementioned Olympic team members, with Hakoah, SFAC, and the Greek-Americans the most formidable competition in the first division.

The Central California League, under the direction of Carlos Perez, now has a total of 25 teams compared to 17 last year.

"In the next championship we will probably have at least two or three more teams," said league secretary Arturo Jacobo, which is a nice indication of growth in the North Central area. Even nicer: a seven-team girls league is on tap this Spring.

The San Joaquin Valley is experiencing a soccer boom of the same type. League prexy James Toon has encouraged growth in that area, and his son Steve has kept matters in the family by handling publicity — the key to the American popularity of the game.

The East Bay League had St. Bernard on top, and an increasing number of American players present on the teams. The Contra-Costa — Alameda Youth

SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY SOCCER FOOTBALL LEAGUE

In the San Joaquin Valley Soccer Football League tight races characterized both the North and South Divisions. In the match for the League Championship, the South Division winners, the Porterville Pan-Americans, defeated the Selma Hurricanes, winners of the North Division.

The San Joaquin Valley Cup Tournament was won by Mexico KGST over the Porterville Pan-Americans. In the Consolation game, Club de Portivo of Fresno took the honors over Livingston 6-2.

In February, an Under-23 division was organized and proved to be successful with 97 young men playing on four teams, encouraging more entries for next season.

The Recreation-Department-sponsored High School Division was won by Roosevelt with Clovis as runnerup.

The Fresno Junior Soccer League had another tremendously successful growth season. From ninety teams last year the league blossomed to one hundred and

On March 10 at the Exhibit Hall of the Fresno Convention Center, the Annual Fresno Junior Soccer League Awards Banquet was held for over two thousand players, parents and enthusiasts. Gus Zernial, Sports Director for KFSN-TV acted as the Master of Ceremonies and Dennis Storer, the soccer coach at UCLA was the guest speaker.

The Second Annual Harold S. Young Trophy went to Bert Bennink, Commissioner of the East League Division of the FJSL for the past five years. Mrs. Ron Shermer was honored for her many services to soccer.

Twenty-six teams from the FJSL are now participating in the California Youth Soccer Assn. State Cup Competition. The Matthew J. Boxer Award this year was presented to Albert Abrahamian, head referee of the San Joaquin Valley for his contributions to soccer over the years.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

One does not need to be a great sage to realize that Southern California has become the number one soccer center in the United States. It took years of hard and dilligent work on the part of a few local soccer pioneers to achieve this outstanding status. It will take a lot of work and dedication to retain this status of being Number One. And the foregoing statement is not just an idle boast. It can be backed up and substantiated by figures.

On the international front Southern California fans had the opportunity to see some of the finest soccer teams of the world in action. West German, South-American, English, Mexican and even some Asian teams were seen and they produced some of the best soccer games one could want to see. And the spectators came out in ever increasing numbers. 15,000 enthusiastic fans came to the L.A. Memorial Coliseum on January 16th to inaugurate the 1972 international season. Cruzeiro of Brazil, with its five international world cup stars narrowly beat the top Mexican Club Guadalajara, 1:0 and the thousands of fans in attendance, clamored for more games of this type, and undoubtedly, there will be more in 1972. We have been assured, that the United States World Cup elimination game, Mexico-US will be played at Los Angeles, in the fall of this year, and that classic should not be missed by any true sports fan.

San Pedro Yugoslav Americans of the Greater L.A. Soccer League reached the Finals of the United States Open Challenge Cup competition. In the Grand Finals, they met Hota of New York and with one minute remaining in the game the surprising Yugoslavs led the favored New Yorkers 3:2 and appeared certain winners. But the New Yorkers managed to tie the game with 57 seconds to go and achieve victory (6:3) in the ensuing overtime periods. The game was played at L.A.s Rancho Stadium.

Valley German American Club of the Greater L.A. Soccer League beat the Guadalajara Club of San Francisco, in both games of the State Cup Finals, 1:0 at San Francisco and 2:1 at Los Angeles, to secure the valuable State Cup Trophy once again for Southern California.

Soccer is expanding in this area from season to season. Seven Senior Leagues, with almost 200 senior teams (directly and indirectly affiliated) are now competing here. Latest two Leagues added are the National Soccer League of San Diego and the United American Soccer League of Los Angeles. Furthermore, the number of teams in the Central Coast League has almost tripled during the course of this season, with more and more cities being added to the roster.

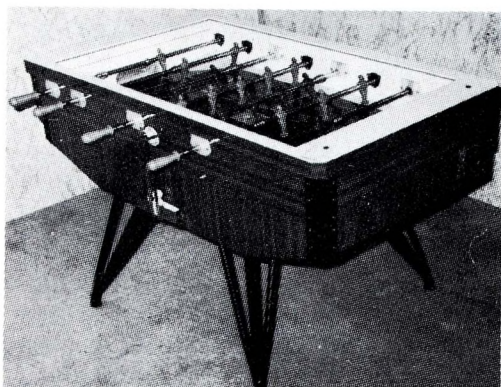

The Junior, Juvenile and Pee Wee Programs presented here, stagger the imagination. More and more Leagues are being added in every part of the L.A. County and San Diego County and they are ably administered by one Central organization, the Southern California Youth Soccer Organization. Additionally, the high schools in the Los Angeles area are now developing a soccer program of their own, due to the many requests by the students and parents. All the universities already have regular soccer schedules and our game is well established there.

Many people have contributed to the phenominal growth of soccer in Southern California by their untiring and unselfish work. It is almost impossible to name them all. Nevertheless, a vote of thanks should go to all of them collectively. They

COLORADO

Several noted events and healthy trends occurred in the Colorado State Soccer Association in 1971. Beginning early in the year, our referee commissioner, Hugo Holzmann, energetically organized the USSFA referees into an association known as the Soccer Officials Association of Colorado. For the first time in several years, an adequate roster of officials became available even though the number of teams increased dramatically as well. Mr. Holzmann's emphasis is now shifting to improving the quality of officiating by the existing referees as a complement to the recruitment of new referees.

During the summer, numerous games were held between local competition and visiting foreign teams. Most significant was the unusual number of local teams participating in these international games which for many years were practically the sole domain of the Denver Kickers. Aurora Soccer Club, Cafe Promenade, the Denver Kickers Sports Club, Littleton Soccer Club, and the Internationals were each involved in international games during 1971. Many of the games had close scores and the local teams prevailed as victors several times. The two professional teams hosted by the Kickers stirred up considerable additional interest. Although the match against West Ham United was a lopsided affair from the beginning, the game against Rot Weiss Essen was a tight 4-3 contest until midway through the second half when Rot Weiss Essen exploded for five more goals. During the summer, the Colorado All-Stars defeated Air France in a game sponsored jointly by our association and the Alliance Francaise of Denver.

Outstanding Performances

The most stirring of all individual performances in 1971 was the explosive play of the Kickers' Mike Flater. Against the powerful defense of West Ham United, he scored a sharp goal from the right wing. Against Rot Weiss Essen, Flater accounted for all his team's scores with three breakaway goals. Each goal was a powerful shot which left the goalie with little chance for a save.

STATE REPORTS

The Colorado State Cup competition, open to all affiliated teams regardless of division, was captured by the Denver Kickers who defeated the Internationals, ending the latter's two year possession of the cup. Several months later, the same two teams met in the finals of the Colorado State Championship, with the Kickers winning a tight 3-2 decision after trailing 2-1 for most of the game. The Internationals had advanced to the finals by upsetting the defending state champion Olympians in the playoff for the Colorado Amateur Soccer League championship.

Columbine Soccer League

In the fall of 1971, an important step forward occurred when all Denver Metropolitan teams voted to play under one banner — in this case the Columbine Soccer League. Although the number of games in the fall was reduced because of the extra time taken in consolidation, the season showed clearly that the keynote of Denver Metropolitan soccer is now balance. No team or small group of teams dominated the Major Division, and none escaped the fall season without a loss. The competition is keen and the quality of play continues to improve. The competent management of the two divisions — Max Baudinat and Stan Barrett of the Major Division and Robert Rottman of the Challenge Division have assured the success of the consolidated league.

Finally, numerous new people have become involved in the programs of the Colorado State Soccer Association, and some traditionally active people have become involved in new ways. State coach Karl Stumpp and premier referee Artie Wachter, both recent graduates of Dettmar Cramer's coaching course, have expanded their efforts to teach and train others. Max Baudinat, Tony Fria, and Stan Barrett have each assumed national committee positions for the first time.

The Colorado State Soccer Association looks with optimism to 1972. Although we are a long distance from solving all the problems of soccer in our state, including its lack of full acceptance by the citizens of Colorado, we think that basic foundations are now being laid from which solutions may be found.

CONNECTICUT

The year 1971 must be considered the "turning point" for soccer in the State of Connecticut as several notable achievements were recorded.

Foremost among these was the establishment of the Connecticut Junior Soccer Association, Inc. This organization successfully expanded junior soccer from a single eleven team 16-18 year old league to competition in four age divisions: 7-10, 11-13, 14-16, and 16-18, in a spring-summer competition; and, fall competition in 7-10 and 11-13 year old divisions. Western Massachusetts, long part of C.S.S.F.A. jurisdiction, entered junior play for the first time under the leadership of Larry Yensen. Winners in the different divisions were:

- "A" Division (16-18), Spring League Competition: Westport S.C.
- "B" Division (14-16), Spring League Competition: Springfield Spurs S.C.
- "C" Division (11-13), Spring League Competition: Springfield Holy Cross S.C.
- "D" Division (7-10), Spring League Competition: Chicopee Ward & Moose S.C.
- "A" Division, C.J.S.A. Cup Competition: Westport S.C.
- "C" Division, Fall Competition: Mansfield Stars S.C.
- "D" Division, Fall Competition: Northampton S.C.

For the first time in its history, Connecticut fielded a representative Junior Select Team which competed locally and in interstate competition. The team was superbly coached by C.S.S.F.A. Junior Coach Warren Swanson.

On the senior level, Ron Gili's election to the presidency of the National Soccer League of Connecticut helped generate new spirit in the country's third largest league. This, coupled with John Hari's tireless efforts as secretary, helped to create a cooperation between the Association and the League not evident in past years.

The 1970-1971 National League had an ending as we had not had before. Hartford Italian-American Stars AC, perennial aspirants for the League title — also US Amateur Champions 1967 — had not won the title for two years in a row and made a valiant effort at a come-back. The Stars did emerge on top of the 12 team A Division; however, a ruling from the USSFA Appeals Committee arrived, upholding an appeal by a third party (Hartford Ukrainians SC). The effect of the ruling was to deduct two points from the I-A Stars and credit them to the Hartford Ukrainians. The Ukes thus accrued a sufficient number of points to keep alive their hopes of staying in the A Division. To the I-A Stars this meant second place in the standings.

It was Chicopee Portuguese SC who dampened the hopes of the I-A Stars. The club did win the League crown deservedly with a steady performance. It was a see-saw battle from the outset of the Spring season to the finish in July. Chicopee's mixture of homegrown playing talent plus a sprinkling of semi-pro players from South America was a delight to watch. Chicopee's success is even more remarkable when one considers that the club won promotion (from the B to the A Division) as late as 1969-1970. In their first year in the A Division then, Chicopee won the League Championship!

The start of the 1971-1972 National League season saw the disbandment of six member teams — all for lack of financial resources. Gaps in the League ranks, however, were filled with the admission of six new teams. Noteworthy is the fact that two of the new teams have 100% American-born players (Bristol and Wilton) while a third team has 90% American born players (Willimantic), a trend which, it is hoped, will continue in the future.

STATE REPORTS

The B Division is again operating with three 8-team groups. The newly-formed clubs started off poorly but have now improved, after enlisting the wider support of their communities. Following their remarkable success in the Amateur Cup, Willimantic SC has emerged as the Cinderella team of the Fall season: this is the first year of their operation they are already on top of their Division. Paul Ingram, Willimantic's manager, certainly put a fine team together, including a number of soccer coaches and All American select players.

In C.S.S.F.A. Major Cup competition, the Hartford Italian-American Stars defeated Hartford Hellenic (3-1, 3-3) in a field of sixteen entries. The C.S.S.F.A. Minor Cup was won by New Britain S.C. who beat the Stamford Blue Stars (7-1, 2-2), outlasting twenty-four opponents.

The State Association split the coaching responsibilities in half by appointing senior and junior coaches with equal responsibility and authority. Appointed to coach and train Connecticut's Senior Team was U.S.S.F.A. licensed Bob Dikranian. The Senior Team will train together throughout the year for the first time in its history.

For the first time, a Coaching School Director has been selected for the 1972 year; Hubert Vogelsinger, "A" licensed U.S.S.F.A. coach. Also, Keith Johnson and Arthur Couch have been appointed Referees School Co-Directors for the coming year in an effort to improve the quantity and quality of officiating in the State.

GEORGIA

Amateur soccer under the leadership of President Bob Burrin and his hard working officers has made much progress. The Atlanta District Amateur Soccer League has a new constitution, improved organization and the future looks bright. 1971 was a year of development in quality of play and participation, with over 400 registered players. The All-Stars of ADASL played Alitalia Airlines soccer team from New York and defeated them 3-0.

The Junior League anticipates continued growth this spring and summer. Last year seven teams participated in the spring season and nine in the summer session. For the first time Georgia had two teams represented in the USSFA Junior Cup competition. The DeKalb Hot Spurs coached by Scotty O'Neill lost a close game to Casa Bianca of Baltimore. The game was played prior to an Atlanta Chiefs game at Atlanta Stadium. This year the Juniors will have four teams entered in the Junior Cup competition. The Junior League was recently reorganized and will have its own governing body of officers under the able leadership of President Marion Joseph.

1971 in the Youth divisions saw two county recreation departments join GAYSL (Georgia Youth Soccer League), bringing the total to nine divisions. Close to 3,000 children took part last summer and this coming year we expect a significant increase. The girls got into soccer last summer and their teams did themselves proud. The Georgia Youth Soccer League elected John Lammert its new president. John helped organize the league and has been active in youth soccer for the entire time it has been on the scene in Georgia.

Soccer may be the name of the game but development is the goal of the Georgia Soccer Referees Association. They are to be congratulated on their progress. GSRA has more than doubled its membership in 1971. From 43 registered USSFA referees in 1970 they now boast 87. Three of these are female! Nine are young college age men and this is indeed an encouraging trend. President Bob Donahue reports new chapters formed in Clayton and Cobb counties are flourishing, and a south Georgia chapter is being formed in Tifton. Would you believe an Adult Education course conducted by GSRA? Emory University is offering one this spring. It will be conducted one evening a week.

Three USSFA Coaches

Coaching in our area is improving each year. We have three licensed USSFA coaches who completed Dettmar Cramer's course. In 1971 the Georgia Association of Soccer Coaches was formed. President Angus MacAlpine and his staff will hold clinics to recruit more coaches and continue the fine work they have been doing for Georgia soccer.

As with any program in the developmental stage there is always a need for more help in all areas. Every organization in soccer in Georgia is expansion minded and all have programs to recruit more coaches, referees and players and to find more fields. Publicity is needed at all levels, but particularly in the Atlanta newspapers and TV. The neighborhood newspapers do an excellent job, but we would like to see better metro-area coverage.

ILLINOIS

The year 1971 started off with a bang with the resumption of Indoor Soccer at the International Amphitheatre, where 20 teams competed in two divisions. The Eagles won the Major Division title and the Youths the 1st Division championship.

D.J. Niotis and Richard K. Giebner were elected to the Illinois Soccer Association. The newly elected officers of the Association were: Marino Mazzei, president; Orest Klufas, vice-president; Richard K. Giebner, secretary-treasurer. Other members of the Association are: Ricardo Castaneda Jr., Frank Kracher and George Meyer.

Commissioner D.J. Niotis was appointed State Development Director and through the Office of the Youth and School Promotion committee spread the gospel of soccer to elementary, high schools and colleges all over the State of Illinois, culminating with the Coaching School at the Illinois Circle Campus in August, presided over by FIFA Coach Dettmar Cramer.

National Junior Cup

The State Association hosted the four finalists in the National Junior Cup, staging the semi-finals and finals in a two-day event over the Memorial Day week-end in Chicago. George Fishwick, Julius Roth, George Meyer and Frank Kracher were in charge of the event and did a great job with the assistance of the other commissioners. In the final SECO, St. Louis beat Casa Bianco, Baltimore 2-0.

The new Governor's Cup was instituted to replace the Peel Cup, which was retired following the death of Dr. Peel, its donor. The first winner was Schwaben A.C., who gained the title by beating the Lions by the score of 1-0. The Governor's Cup is now emblematic of the Soccer Championship in Illinois and it must be won three times before a club can claim it as its own.

Commissioner Richard K. Giebner was appointed to supervise the referee's unit. His guidance and experience as a former referee made it possible for things to run smoothly throughout the year. The Illinois State Assn. initiated the tough task of grading the referees. Even though perfection may not have been achieved, it was a step in the right direction and an incentive to every referee to improve his officiating.

The Illinois Soccer Association attended the USSFA Convention in Atlantic City, New Jersey with Richard K. Giebner and Marino Mazzei as delegates and George Meyer as alternate delegate.

USSFA Summer Camp

Four star junior players from the Chicago area, Gil Armendariz, Kim Perez, Hans Mayer and Louis Ortega attended the USSFA Summer Camp held at Edwardsville, Ill. in June.

Three players were selected to the National Pan-American Soccer team: Rudy Getzinger, Adolph Kampf and Jimmy Woolfe.

Six issues of the Illinois Soccer Association Newsletter were put out during the year as part of publicity and communication.

The Green-White Soccer team was the Chicago finalist in the Amateur Cup and Sparta A.B.a. reached the quarter finals in the Open.

STATE REPORTS

The State Association again presented Medals to the high school players selected as All-State High School team members.

Nine International matches were held in Chicago during the summer months highlighted by Pele's appearance at Soldier Field.

George Meyer was appointed Commissioner for the Open and Amateur Cups in the State of Illinois. Julius Roth is the Junior Commissioner.

The 1971-72 Indoor Soccer Championships were again held at the Amphitheatre and started on Dec. 19th.

The 1971 Major Division Championship was won by the Croatians by the score of 4-1 over the Lions in the play-offs.

Junior Division

In the Junior Division the North Section was won by the Green-White and the South Section by the Lions. In the play-off Green-White beat the Lions, 3-1. In the Juvenile Division the North Section was won by the Eagles, while the South Section saw the Sparta team emerge victorious. In the playoff the Eagles beat Sparta by the score of 2-1 to win the title.

In the Midgets Division St. Alphonsus and Atlante were the winners of their respective sections.

The final standings of the National Soccer League of Chicago were as follows:

MICHIGAN

Under the guidance of men such as Bert Martin, substantial strides have been made in the development of soccer in the State of Michigan. Martin is the Secretary of the Detroit Soccer League as well as a player for the Sport Club 1924 team. He is a member of the Detroit All-Stars and one of the leading goal scorers in the league.

In addition to his secretarial and playing duties, Martin writes a soccer column for the Detroit Abend Post, and in an emergency situation, assumed the duties of President of the Detroit League.

The most outstanding performance by a club during the 1971 season was turned in by the Iraqi Soccer Club of the Detroit Soccer League's Second Division West. Iraqi S.C., playing in its first season, won its division title and then proceeded to defeat the Second Division East Champion, Club Italia, by a 5-1 aggregate in the home and home playoffs.

The Carpathia Kickers captured the Detroit Soccer League First Division Crown with Serbian S.C. only two points behind. The St. Joe Kickers won the Western Michigan Soccer League Championship by a narrow two point margin over the Kalamazoo Internationals.

The outstanding players of the Detroit Soccer League west: First Division: A. Reichert (Kickers), Second Division West: D. Migliaccio (Brazil), and Second Division East: P. Straka (Slovakia).

In the Western Michigan Soccer League, awards went to: Top Scorer: Ralf Kloster (K-Zoo Internationals), Player of the Year: Ralf Kloster (K-Zoo Internationals), Best Goalie: Adam Streital (Be-Quick).

Leading Scorers of the Detroit Soccer League West: First Division: D. Popov (Serbian), Second Division West: N. Zoma (Iraqi), Second Division East: F. Urbano (Club Italia).

MINNESOTA

Minnesota's progress in both senior and youth soccer is rapidly reaching a level where coaching and referee deficiencies may become a problem. All leagues have undergone great expansions and good quality soccer is becoming apparent, thanks to many people who are devoting their time and efforts to the game. While parents are showing more and more interest, certain news media are still reluctant to support the sport.

STATE REPORTS

The Minnesota Soccer Football League (MSFL) expanded from a two division to a three division league in 1971. The Ukrainian Soccer Club again took the first division crown, the Balkans and the Bloomington Dukes taking firsts in the second and third divisions respectively.

In April 22 teams enjoyed the successful 1971 Opening Tournament, sponsored by the new Bloomington Soccer Club, when the U.S.C. took first place followed by Polonia and the Dukes.

The new third division in the M.S.F.L. consisted of newly-formed teams, fielding primarily young American-born soccer players. To such teams, the Bloomington Dukes and St. Louis Park, have advanced into the second division for the 1972 season, with a very good chance to reach first division in 1973.

Mayo S.C., Rochester, which advanced from the second division last season, and finished third in the first division in 1971, captured the Minnesota Cup with a 3-2 victory over U.S.C.

The Minneapolis Kickers took the Wilson Cup for the second season in a row, after defeating the Balkans (2-1) and U.S.C. in the final (3-2).

In the 1971 National Amateur Cup, the Polonia S.C. of Minneapolis, shocked the NCB Execs S.C. of So. Dakota, with a 16-0 victory in a recent match.

Several teams again represented Minnesota in the annual Thunderbay Tournament, sponsored by the Save-Way-United S.C., Thunderbay, Canada. U.S.C. returned with a second place showing in the winner's round and the Kickers a third place in the consolation round.

Eleven Minnesota teams participated in a recent fourteen team indoor soccer tournament put on by the Eau Claire S.C. The Braemar Dundees finished first, while the Minneapolis Kickers took second, with Eau Claire S.C. and the Bloomington Dukes sharing third.

The members of the Minnesota Soccer Association owe thanks to the President, Richard F. Hunt Jr. for his organizational and promotional efforts both in the Twin Cities and outlying area. Also deserving mention for their work are Larry Dahl, secretary, Chester Bijoch, treasurer and Youth Development Director, and Mr. Ed W. Callan, board member.

Referees Association

The two year old Minnesota Soccer Referee's Association is continuing its excellent work to promote quality officiating. This Association was capably led this season, by President Leif H. Larsen. Mr. Peter Silberbauer, referee coordinator and scheduler for High Schools, also has performed work of commendable quality.

The Minnesota Junior Soccer Association boasted unprecedented expansion in the 1971 season, mainly due to the efforts of the Beggin brothers, Glen and Paul. Over 500 boys competed in three different age-groups, the Developmental, Junior, and Elementary Leagues. In the two divisional Developmental League, North St. Paul and WBI captured the first and second divisions championships respectively. Similarly in the two divisional Junior League the respective champions were the Bloomington Knights and North Oaks. Finishing first and second in the Elementary League were the Stuart Oil of St. Anthony and Braemar-Edina Juniors respectively.

The Junior Association and the independent Bloomington Athletic Association Soccer program, the latter also supporting about 500 young boys and this year run competently by Dr. Robert Phelps, are organizations that American Soccer can rely on to get material for the future.

STATE REPORTS

In the MIAC college league Gustavus College had a harder time defending their title this last season. College soccer is becoming increasingly competitive.

Bethany College, competing in an unorganized league had an outstanding record, and participated in the Jr. College championship playoffs in Miami, Florida.

Minnesota High School soccer will undergo further expansion next season, from three to four leagues, in addition to expansions in the individual old leagues. Not enough can be said about the personnel involved in this program, and their efforts towards its promotion. The strive for uniformity in rules between the leagues, and for a State High School Tournament are the primary functions of the new Minnesota High School Coaches Association. This past fall, Edina H.S. suffered but a loss and a tie in ten games to win the Lake Conference. Moundsview was victorious in ten of its twelve encounters to capture the Suburban Soccer League Crown over close contenders South St. Paul and Ramsey. In the Independent Conference Playoffs, Eastern Division Champion Cretin defeated Western Division titlist Blake 3-1.

In closing, we Minnesotans would like to pay tribute to Mr. Erich Hennig. He led the St. Paul Soccer Club for ten years as its President, and made it the great club it is today. He was the USSFA authorized Commissioner for several years and has recently been made an honorary board member of the Minnesota Soccer Association. He has earned great respect for his unending drive for the promotion of good soccer and sportsmanship. We hope Mr. Hennig will continue his associations with us for many years to come.

MISSOURI

St. Louis is proud of its four 1970-1971 National Championship Soccer Teams. Kutis S.C., winner of many National titles took the U.S.S.F.A. National Amateur Championship by defeating a strong Cleveland State S.C. for their 7th U.S.S.F.A. Amateur title (the 8th for St. Louis). In the Junior Division the Seco Soccer Club won the U.S.S.F.A. National Junior Division title. This was the 14th National Junior title for St. Louis. St. Louis University put it all together to capture the 1970 N.C.A.A. soccer championship and Florissant Valley Junior College won the National Junior College Championship.

To continue the pat on the back for St. Louis, there are six players on the U.S.A. Olympic soccer team and two alternates. Three have been starters and prominent in all the games. Additionally, S.I.U.E. coach, Bob Guelker, of St. Louis, is the Olympic Soccer coach. The CYC also hosted an Olympic Tournament to give the Olympic team preparation games before their tournament in Miami.

While the St. Louis Soccer Stars finished low in the NASL standings, they should be applauded for having the confidence to field American born players in their team, especially the ones that are born and raised in St. Louis.

CYC Champions

St. Williams S.C. was crowned C.Y.C.'s Busch Major League Champion, beating the strong young first-half Champion Cardinal Glennon College. St. Williams was also the winner of the Missouri Soccer Federation Tournament of Champions.

St. Stephen was the Senior Closed Division C.Y.C. Champions which included sixteen teams. In the eight team Junior District Pepsi program, the CYC North County Norco S.C. was the Champion, and Nativity S.C. won the 52-team CYC Junior Closed Division. In the CYC Juvenile Division, 14-16 years old, St. Dismas S.C. of the Florissant District captured a record third straight championship. Parochial Champion this year was St. Jerome S.C. from the North County CYC.

The CYC Intermediate Champion was St. Dismas S.C. of the Florissant CYC District. In the Crusader Division, St. Francis of Assisi S.C. from the South County CYC won. The District Championship was awarded to St. Ann's S.C. from the CYC North Central.

In our Atom Division, (6-8 years old) all Parishes play on an intarmural basis to avoid pressure competition for the young ages. Our Archdioceses Soccer Program is divided into eight organized Districts.

Teams of the St. Louis Soccer League enjoyed another successful season, making their presence felt locally and nationally.

The league was composed of nine teams divided into a five team North Division League won by the Stag Beer S.C. managed by Sal Noto and a four team South Division League won by the Kutis Mortuary S.C. managed by Freidel Geissert. The play-off was won by Giesler-Jorgen Sporting Good S.C. managed by John Traina.

The Kutis Mortuary S.C. gained national honors by again winning the National Amateur Cup Championship for the seventh time.

The Hamms Beer S.C., the Mid-West Open Cup Champions were deprived of a chance to win the Open Cup Championship by being disqualified in the semi-finals because of a misinterpretation of the traveling rule.

STATE REPORTS

Steve Auberry of the Kutis Mortuary S.C. was chosen as the Most Valuable Player of the League.

In the Khoury Soccer Association, the champions were:— Seniors-North: Pat Kennys S.C.; Seniors-South: Riggazi S.C.; Juniors-North: Overland Dairy; Juniors-South: Teamsters 600. Champions of the Metro Soccer League were: Seniors, Volpi-Virtus S.C.; Juniors, Seco S.C.

by DEREK ENGSTROM

Features of the year include an age group change in our youth leagues to correspond as closely as possible with the national standards and still provide for a 7 and 8 year-old age group. This was accomplished by dividing groups exclusively by year of birth. This method eliminates the confusion resulting for players born on January 1st.

This was the first year for Girls Soccer and we expect considerable expansion this area next year.

The unprecedented expansion this year was the largest in the soccer history of Nevada and included a new youth league in the City of North Las Vegas.

One highlight of the year was the City of Las Vegas Junior Tournament won by Gorman Gales with a 2-1 win over Patriots. The tournament included a marathon 2 hour and 10 minute game in which the Patriots beat Scots 3-2.

An idea of the growth of soccer in Nevada within the past year can be gleaned from these figures: in the 1970-71 season, there were 670 players involved in 203 games. In 1971-72 season, the number of players had jumped to 1,305 and there were 404 games played — not including various tournament and cup games.

NEW JERSEY SOCCER POWER

NEW JERSEY

The New Jersey State Football Assoc., headed by Fritz Marth, President, and Foster Perry, Secretary, has led in expansions in the junior and juvenile movement.

The Schaefer Soccer League of New Jersey headed by Mr. G. Wilson, President, has taken a giant step in its expansion program, by entering into a working agreement with the American Soccer League. The Schaefer League has entered an All Star Team in competition in the American Soccer League. The Schaefer League has also completed a merger with the South Jersey League, to expand to two sections, the northern section with four divisions and the southern section with two divisions, and a third division is contemplated.

Once again credit must be afforded the F. & M. Schaefer Brewing Company for their support in soccer promotion. Soccer would really move if every state found such support from a sponsor.

The New Jersey State Junior League (under the direction of the Schaefer League) in its ever increasing desire to elevate the importance of soccer within the state has enjoyed another banner year in junior growth. There are 50 junior, 59 juvenile, 94 novices and 150 mini teams in year-round operation, particularly in South Jersey where the weather is fairly stable and there is the luxury of open land and an over-abundance of fields.

New Jersey has entered 37 junior teams in the national cup, which is an all time high for New Jersey, if not the entire nation. New Jersey will also host the National Junior Cup in Trenton.

To further promote soccer there is presently a movement within the state to centralize the entire junior movement. The proposed name for this organization is "The New Jersey State Youth Soccer Assoc." (SYSA).

New Jersey State Junior All-Stars

In August 1971, the New Jersey State Junior All Stars traveled for four weeks to Europe.

Under the leadership of State Coach Manfred Schellscheidt the following 16 players made the trip: Mike Barca, Van Taylor, Mike Angelotti, Brian Murray, Glen Costa, Jim Harrison, Bob Smith, Tom Moore, Dick Moore, Glen Myernick, Kevin Welsh, Tom Bartulino, Santiago Formoso, Hueh O'Neill, Tim Murphy and Juergen Armbruster. Coaching Assistant was Charles Ferruto.

After preparing for six months, the team traveled well prepared and played 15 games, of which 9 were won, 3 lost and 3 tied.

The first two weeks the team lived in private quarters and the final two weeks were guests at the Sports academy in Duisburg, Germany.

The team was very much improved after its return and coach Schellscheidt has great hopes for the future of all his players.

The best games of the trip were the 1:0 loss to the Belgian Junior Champion F.C. Beringen, the 1:1 tie against Schwarz/Weiss Essen, as well as the wins against some of the best Junior teams in the Lower Rhein division in West Germany: 4:1 against Grafenbroich, 9:0 against Leverkusen, 3:0 against Solingen 95; 6:0 VFR Wald and 7:0 against Solingen-Ohligs. The total goals scored were 55:10.

New Jersey is proud of its growing interest in indoor soccer, which now draws packed houses. The F. & M. Schaefer Brewing Company again gave soccer support for the 9th annual indoor tournament. The prize monies given amounted to $15,000.00, with First Prize of $4,900.00 to Paterson Roma, and $1,000.00 to the playoff winners, N.Y. Greek Americans. With the new season coming the Committee is looking forward to the 1973 Indoor Tournament, and shooting for a higher prize money of $18,000.00.

N.W. NEW YORK

Through the seemingly tireless efforts of new Development Director Ralph Wager and the President of the Rochester United S.C., Colin Green, numerous groups that for the past four or five years have been involved in activities other than soccer have been contacted and encouraged to become involved in organized soccer.

Breaking down the different age groups in both the Junior and Juvenile Leagues has greatly expanded interest in the game with 54 new teams registered for the coming season. The fact that the Senior League has been recruiting players as they graduate from the Junior Leagues has encouraged more participation at the Junior level. We have been fortunate to recruit senior players, who have retired from active play, as referees in the Junior and Juvenile games.

Credit must also be given to Mrs. Peg Fowler for her continuing efforts in keeping the Rochester Summer League in operation for 19 years.

With the tremendous influx of youth teams in the Rochester and surrounding areas our major concern is the shortage of coaches to handle the younger players.

In the Rochester Soccer League the German American Soccer Club continued its convincing domination with its fourth consecutive championship. Guy Bonfiglio of the Rochester Rangers S.C. was the League's top scorer.

The Rochester Juniors S.C. isn't prepared to relinquish its grasp on the Rochester Junior Title capturing that Crown for the third consecutive season.

SOUTHERN NEW YORK

The overall situation in New York State is characterized by two divergent patterns of development. One is very bright: tremendous accomplishments have been made by the State Association in bringing up hundreds of young soccer players, most of them American citizens; the other aspect of our soccer world is indeed very gloomy: the absolute insufficiency of soccer facilities, namely soccer fields, referees, training camps, and specialized medical treatment for soccer players.

Our State Association is capable of doing much more. The man-power of our organization is among the best in the nation, as can be seen by the number of N.Y.S.S.A. officials appointed by the U.S.S.F.A. president to national committees. But whatever has been built this far could vanish if an acceptable solution for each of the problems is not found.

It is a common feeling that the game of soccer has grown so much at all levels that new regulations, a new set-up, a new and more efficient system must be put into effect.

Our State association has explored even the most remote resources to bring popularity to soccer, but much more remains to be done. Increasing popularity does not necessarily mean increasing efficiency, and today, after many years of hard work, we still face the same paradox that has plagued us for years: a large number of clubs, a large number of leagues (perhaps too many), but very few soccer fields.

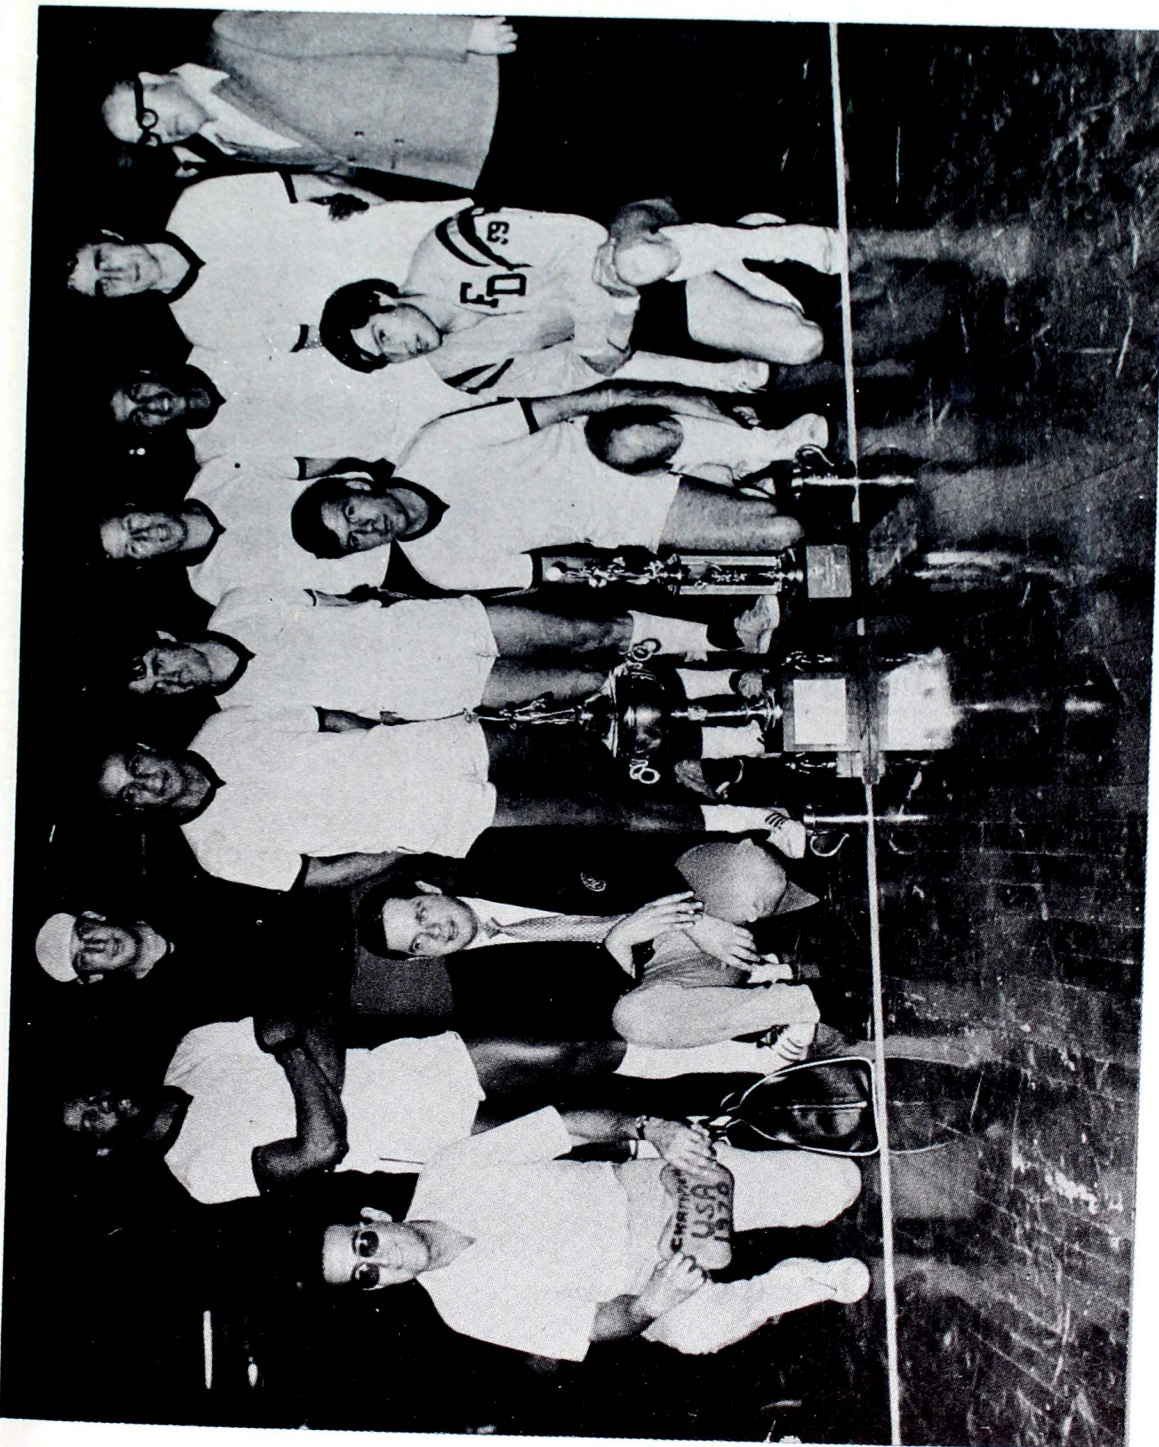

Can these problems be resolved? The answer is yes, if the national body will give the state associations the power to elaborate any plan they see fit and, if each and every one in power will understand that the structure itself today is obsolete.

Our association, as in the past, will be among the first to re-structure the entire system should that be the right solution.

The many accomplishments that have been realized so far, the many good programs that have been put into effect, the many years that have been spent developing the game are the stepping stones to final success. Today we must follow the good roads indicated to us by our predecessors, and at the same time explore new ones — roads that are more realistic, more appropriate, and closer to the mentality and soul of our younger generation. This is our annual message: to continue our endeavor with strong determination in a spirit of sacrifice to the game of soccer, confident of the days ahead.

ELIZABETH S.C., WINNERS OF THE 1971 GERMAN-AMERICAN LEAGUE INDOOR TOURNAMENT

German American Football Association

by KARL SCHEIBOECK

Sports Editor, New Yorker Staats-Zeitung und Herold

The German American Football Association, fielded 107 teams (representing 38 clubs) in 17 divisions during the 1970/71 season.

In addition, 10 juvenile teams and 30 boys teams were actively engaged during the year. However, the GAFA showed not only considerable quantity, but also quality.

With NY Hota winning the US Open Challenge Cup by beating the San Pedro Yugoslavs at Los Angeles in the final, there is proof that the German American Football Association is the top semi-professional league in the nation.

The contributions of the GAFA to the North American Soccer League player roster were also considerable. Many players of GAFA clubs were signed by NASL teams.

Elizabeth SC was the winner of the 10th Indoor Classic, by beating N.Y. Hota 2-1 in the final. The Major League had NY Hota (Group North) and Elizabeth SC (Group South) as Co-Champions. The Premier Division also had Co-Champions; Dalmatinac in Group North and Clarkstown in Group South. Champion of the League Division was Colombiana.

With play in two groups in each division, Dalmatinac and Clarkstown gained spots in the Major League by clinching their respective titles in the Premier Division. White Plains and Colombiana won the race in the League Division in their groups. Relegation came to Hoboken FC and German Americans from the Major League, and the Bavarians from the Premier Division.

The Greek Americans were the winners of the Schaefer Indoor Tournament in the Paterson Armory, N.J. White Plains won its second Knickerbocker Cup, a competition of the Southern NY State Association. New York Hota B was the winner for the second time of the Association Cup. Elizabeth S.C. took the New Jersey State Cup. The BW Gottschee Boys were the winners of the German American Junior League Indoor Tournament.

The outlook at the midpoint of the 1971-72 season was extremely encouraging, with a slight increase in spectators and competition very tight in all three divisions.

Soccer, especially junior and little league soccer, is on the upswing in Massachusetts. The number of high school teams has increased 80% over last year. Junior high school soccer has also increased. Towns are beginning to sponsor local leagues. In Greater Boston where 5 years ago there were only 10 junior teams, there is now the unaffiliated Boston Area Youth Soccer League which in '72 will have a roster of approximately 60 junior and little league teams. Although senior soccer was split down the middle at the beginning of the season, both sides are now conducting meetings to join together for the '72 season and some good seems to have come from the schism. Both the number of teams and the number of officials have increased; if an agreement is reached and the two sides get together it will be a great '72 season.

Coaches are a problem, there simply aren't enough of them, especially in the high schools. Although the number of high school teams is rapidly increasing, the coaching is very poor. A great deal of the fault in this case lies with the schools themselves. There are qualified coaches available, but most schools require that a coach has some kind of a degree. Until schools realize that if they are going to have a soccer team they need a coach with a certificate in soccer coaching either from USSFA or some other recognized body and not a degree in physical education. School teams may be increasing, but not the quality of play.

Mr. John Roach, a referee who came to us from Bermuda with a referee's card from FIFA at the beginning of the 1971 season, did an excellent job running clinics in New Hampshire, Boston and Worcester. He has been instrumental in the recruitment of a large number of new referee's. He has also introduced a 1st, 2nd and 3rd class grading system for our referee's. In doing this, he has given up a tremendous amount of time at no charge to this Association. Interestingly enough, his wife also holds a referee's card. A tough team to beat, indeed.

Worcester Scans were the Massachusetts State League champions, with Lowell Lusitanos the runners-up. Revere were the winners of the Two-Light League. Other champions were: Lynfield (Inter-City League); Claremont (New Hampshire League); Worcester (Junior League).

In winning the playoffs against Lowell, Worcester Scans won their 40th consecutive game; they were finally beaten by Lowell Lusitano in a National Amateur Cup playoff.

This spring will see the birth of an independent New Hampshire State Soccer Association. The move has the blessing of the Northern Massachusetts and New Hampshire State Association, and provisional membership to the new Association has been granted by USSFA, subject to ratification at their AGM in Alaska in July, 1972.

OHIO

Soccer fever climbed upward during the early part of the 1971 season due to two unprecedented events in the history of the Lake Erie Soccer League. In fact, two local teams received national recognition for their achievements in both the U.S. Amateur and Open Cups. The Danube Swaben, not new to these exploits, reached the Eastern Final in the U.S. Open Cup before being defeated by the eventual national champions Hota of New York. In the U.S. Amateur Cup, the Inter Italians S.C., LESL Major Division Champions, after a slow start in the local loop where they had to play two overtime games, went all the way to the Grand Final. The biggest achievement in their 10 year history came when they defeated the first teams from Ohio-Indiana, Pennsylvania, Michigan and N. Jersey; they played their best game in edging the home team, the Ukranian Sitch, 2-0 with two goals by Jim McMillan.

The final games was staged in Cleveland; the opposition was provided by the five times U.S. champions Kutis of St. Louis. Kutis proved too much for the Clevelanders who bowed 4-1. In spite of the losses Italians and Swaben showed that Ohio soccer is very much alive and going strong.

The soccer season started very early with the American Turners Indoor Soccer Tournament. Here are the 1971 champions:

|                   |                   |
|-------------------|-------------------|
| Major Division:   | Danube Swaben.    |
| First Division:   | CCC Metro.        |
| Reserve Division: | Danube Swaben     |
| Junior "A"        | Inter Italians    |
| Junior "B"        | Danube Swaben.    |
| Junior "C"        | Ukranian American |

The 1971 season was a repeat of the 1970's. In fact the Inter Italian S.C. was the runaway winner in the Eastern Division, while the Croatians again edged the Danube Swaben in the Western loop. When the two divisional winners met for the title two games had to be played to determine the eventual champions. In the first, the two teams were deadlocked 1-1 after two 15 minute overtimes; finally in the second the Italians came out on top 3-2 to take the overall championship of the Major Division for the second straight year.

In the First Division, the Eastern Division Pan American S.C. trimmed the Western Division Danube Swaben 2-1 and gained elevation to the Major Division.

In the Reserve Division, the Inter Italian S.C. had the championship wrapped up at the end of the spring season, but costly mistakes enabled Danube Swaben, who had previously been beaten by the Italians 5-1, to draw to within one point with one game remaining. The two teams met in the last game of the season and this time Swaben was ready, defeating the Italians 2-0.

The Ohio All-Stars played two games during the year. One in Dayton where they defeated the Ohio-Indiana All-Stars 4-3 and another in Cleveland where they lost to an excellent Sparta team of Chicago 4-2.

Two members of the OSSFA attended a coaching school held at the University of Chicago, run by Dettmar Cramer. Both Mr. Otto Thuransky and Mr. Gianfranco Borroni obtained "C" coaching licenses.

STATE REPORTS

Leslie Szabo of the Cleveland Magyar S.C. established a new individual scoring record for a Major Division player by tallying 7 times in the Magyars 14-1 rout over the Corenese S.C.

The Danube Swaben of the Reserve Division recorded the highest number of victories in the league—12.

There were also many fine individual performances turned in last season that deserve mention: J. McMillan for his outstanding season in bringing the Italians to the Grand Final of the U.S. Amateur Cup; Manlio Lungo—outstanding for the Italians in the backfield; John Stephenson (Danube Swaben)—one of the top left-wingers in the League; and Frank Herring (American Croats)—one of the best goaltenders in the League.

OHIO-INDIANA-KENTUCKY

Growth continues slowly but surely, but we continue to suffer from the perennial problems: lack of publicity, and a shortage of qualified coaches and referees. We need more people with the pioneer spirit, willing to give their full support to the sport of soccer, and not just to their particular club. We need more people like OIKSA secretary Paul Scheurmann, who has been associated with OIKSA since 1953, and whose untiring hard work is the main reason why the Association has survived its many hardships and perils.

OREGON

In reviewing the year of 1971, there is no doubt that the enthusiasm and devotion to soccer by a growing number of Oregonians have contributed to the fact that this game is at last taking its proper place among the major sports in the state.

Oregon can now boast of 65 junior soccer teams with over 1000 players participating. The expansion of junior soccer is illustrated by the following: in 1968 the Columbia Junior Soccer League had 10 teams, whereas today they can muster 19, in two divisions. Southern Oregon first saw junior soccer about 1967 and at that time 5 teams participated. Since that date the growth and interest have shown a steady increase and today there are teams in Grants Pass, Ashland, Klamath Falls, and Corvallis, just to name a few of the areas where juniors play.

The growth of the game in the junior ranks can be credited to the dedication of such stalwarts as Hal Smith, Jack Shipley and Emiel Van Delden and many others too numerous to mention who have given devoted service to the promotion and expansion of the game. There is every indication that this army of juniors will very shortly be affiliated members of both the State and National Associations. A program has been prepared setting out the most urgent needs of the juniors.

When one reflects on the ability and determination of such leaders as Willy Rein and John Decker, the future of junior soccer in Oregon is, to say the least, most encouraging.

Willamette League

When referring to the Willamette League one naturally thinks of its president, Bob Reece. Under his drive and infectious enthusiasm, the Willamette League has grown from 6 teams in 1966-67, to the present day total of 15 teams and over 230 players. One very worthwhile endeavor of Bob and his committee is to search out potential soccer players among the American born youth, realizing that in time, the immigrant who learned his soccer in another country will soon be too old to play.

Outstanding among those teams with players in the 17-18 year range is the Forest Grove Chiefs. They are worthy league champions. The Skyline Cardinals won the Fred Herwaarden Trophy, which is the coveted Northern Division Cup, by defeating the Salem Kickers by 2-1. The Southern Division champions, "Oregon Amstel, won the Robert S. Reece Cup, by beating Oregon State University Rangers 1-0. The climax to the North vs. South rivalry came when Amstel won the Forrest Udy Cup by beating Oregon State University Rangers 7-1.

At the conclusion of the first half of the 71-72 season there were 5 teams in the Portland Associations, namely:—The Latin Soccer Club; Portland Americans; St. Patricks; Germania, and the Portland Soccer Club. Another club, Hellas, composed of soccer players with Greek origin or associations joined the Association during the second half of the season. Credit for the achievement of the league and high standard of play among the members is due to the ability of its President, Harry McGuckin and Secretary George Jenkins.

One team—Germania—calls for special mention. They are the holders of four soccer trophies:—The Bennet, Cameron, Johnston and the Portland League Cup. At present they also claim the honor of being champions of the Portland League.

STATE REPORTS

The chairman of the Oregon Soccer Football Referees Association is J.B. "Birnie" Rilatt. He learned his soccer in the East Riding of Yorkshire England, and came to Portland in 1953. He played in the Portland League until 1962. When he formed the referees association and has filled the position of chairman since that date.

Under his direction the standard of refereeing has vastly improved; other activities he has sponsored include the organization of evening sessions for public school teachers on soccer coaching, conducting sessions for the coaching of referees, and the testing of potential referees throughout the state of Oregon.

Southern Oregon

Great efforts are being made to promote soccer in Southern Oregon. Although at the present there is no established soccer league in the region, regular matches are arranged between many southern Oregon towns, and rivalry is keen. There is every indication the existing teams will shortly join the State and National Associations.

Youth soccer in the south of the state is very much to the front. The first Southern Junior Soccer Tournament had 10 teams competing for two trophies. The team from Ashland won both the Don Cowan and John Decker trophies by very narrow margins. All matches are well supported and keenly contested.

Serious efforts are now being made to encourage Youth Soccer in Eugene, Roseburg and Medford and eventually to create more competitions among the youth teams, by forming a "Six Cities" Junior League.

E. PENNSYLVANIA

During the past year, there were seven Leagues affiliated with the Eastern Pennsylvania Soccer Association, with the total of 258 teams competing. There were 68 teams of Senior caliber, and 190 teams in the junior and juvenile rank.

The United Soccer League of Pennsylvania, (the largest Senior league) operated with 36 teams. In the Central Pennsylvania Soccer League there were ten (10) Senior Teams. The Champion of the league was the Schaeffertown S.C.

The Football League of The Associated Cricket Clubs had Twelve Senior Teams. The Champion of the "A" Division was the St. Josephs College Alum., while the "B" Division Champion was the First City Troop. The Briggs S.C. of West Chester were the Champions of the 10-team Delaware Valley Soccer League.

The largest youth League in the Association was the Inter-County Soccer League, with 80 teams. The winners of their Division were as follows:

Junior Division:—Roslyn Boy's Club. Midget Division:—Roslyn Boy's Club. Pee Wee Division:—Hilltown S.C. Novice Division:—St. John Bosco Saints.

The United Junior Soccer League had 70 teams. The winners of their Divisions are as follows: Junior Division:—Lighthouse Nationals. Midget Division:—Lighthouse Phantoms. Pee Wee Division:—Lighthouse Thistles. Novice Division:—Torres-

W. PENNSYLVANIA

The six team Juvenile League was a hotly contested race between the Heidelberg and McKeesport teams. The title was not decided until the last game, at which point Heidelberg had a one point edge over McKeesport. In the last five minutes of the game Rick Schultz scored the winning goal giving McKeesport a 1-0 victory. Mgr. Les Hazifia of McKeesport had Rick Schlutz, Gary Schmitt, Joe Spinosa playing outstanding ball for him. Heidelberg under Merle Utchel led the league until the final game. The positions of the league were: 1. McKeesport—8-0-2-18 pts. 2. Heidelberg—8-1-1-17 pts. 3. Bethel Park—5-3-2-12 pts. 4. Beadling—3-7-0-6 pts. 5. New Brighton—2-8-0-4 pts. Mt. Lebanon—1-8-1-3 pts.

The West Penn Juvenile Championship was won by Heidelberg. Beadling defeated Mt. Lebanon 1-0; Heidelberg beat Bethel Park 5-0. In the final Heidelberg won over Beadling 5-1. Scoring well for Heidelberg in the cup games were Jeff Breen, Ray Losego, Denny Lowden.

The West Penn Junior League had eight teams playing. The Harmarville Bodicks, under Mgr. Jack Pasanac, and Sonny Yakopac won the League title with a 13-0-1 record. Second were Beadling under Mgr. Franny Luxbacher, with 11-0-2. Heidelberg, under Mgr. Don Novakowski were in third place with 8-4-2. Then followed Mt. Lebanon (5-5-1), North Allegheny (4-8-2), Hempfield (4-10-0), Allegheny Valley (3-9-3), and North Hills (2-10-2).

The Bodicks' two goalies, Terry Orbin and Ed Yohman, had 9 shutouts in the league. While Beadling goalie Gene Klein had 8. The leading scorers for Bodicks were Loy Yakopac, John Fogle, Jim O'Donnel. For Beadling the standouts were Denny Kohlmeyer, Alan Morand, Bob Hull, Reed Sourbeer, Dave Walk and Tony Jamie.

Cup Competition

In the West Penn Junior Cup, the Harmarville Bodicks defeated Beadling in a two game series, 3-1 and 3-0.

In the National Junior Cup Games, the Beadling Jrs. upset the Harmarville Bodicks 3-2 in the first round, and then defeated Heidelberg in a two game series 7-0 and 5-0.

In the Inter City Round Beadling travelled to Cleveland to play the Italians. The regulation game ended in a 2-2 tie. Forty minutes of overtime was played with the score still the same. Penalty kicks were taken with both teams scoring four out of five. In the second series Beadling won on Denny Kohlmeyer's kick. Beadling next played Detroit, winning 2-1 on goals by Alan Morand, and Denny Kohlmeyer. Baltimore were the next opponents and in a hard fought game they defeated Beadling 4-2.

In the Keystone League the title was won by Monongahela under manager Art Doty with an undefeated, untied 16-win record. In second place were Harmarville, under manager Micky Liberati and Ray Tarasi, with a 13-2-1 record. Monongahela goalies Keenan and Bill Haines turned in 7 shut-outs, while Harmarville goalie Kenny Lloyd had six.

STATE REPORTS

In the National Open Cup Monongahela defeated Appolos 4-3, before going on to the interstate round to defeat Dayton Edelweiss 4-0 in double overtime, on goals by Bozo Pascarelli, Frank DeRosa, Pino Cianflone, and Puggy Mitchell. In the next round, Monongahela lost 3-5 to Cleveland Danube Schwaben. In the Amateur Cup, Monogahela defeated Harmarville 6-3, before losing 1-3 to Cleveland Italians. The West Penn Senior Cup Championship was won by Harmarville.

For the second year in a row, the Foreign All Stars and the American born stars played to a tie. Nick DiOrio, a former player with Morgan Strassers, Harmarville, Beadling and Pittsburgh Indians, and now Vice President of the West Penn Soccer Association was honored by the Dapper Dan.

In the High School soccer program, Springdale High School defeated Chartiers Valley High School for the title.

Finally, a word of thanks for the wonderful co-operation of the Pittsburgh Post Gazette and writer Andy Dugo; also the Pittsburgh Press' Fred Landucci and Bob Black.

NORTH TEXAS

Boom!—is a four letter word—the only one that can describe the fantastic growth experienced in North Texas in the last few months on the soccer scene.

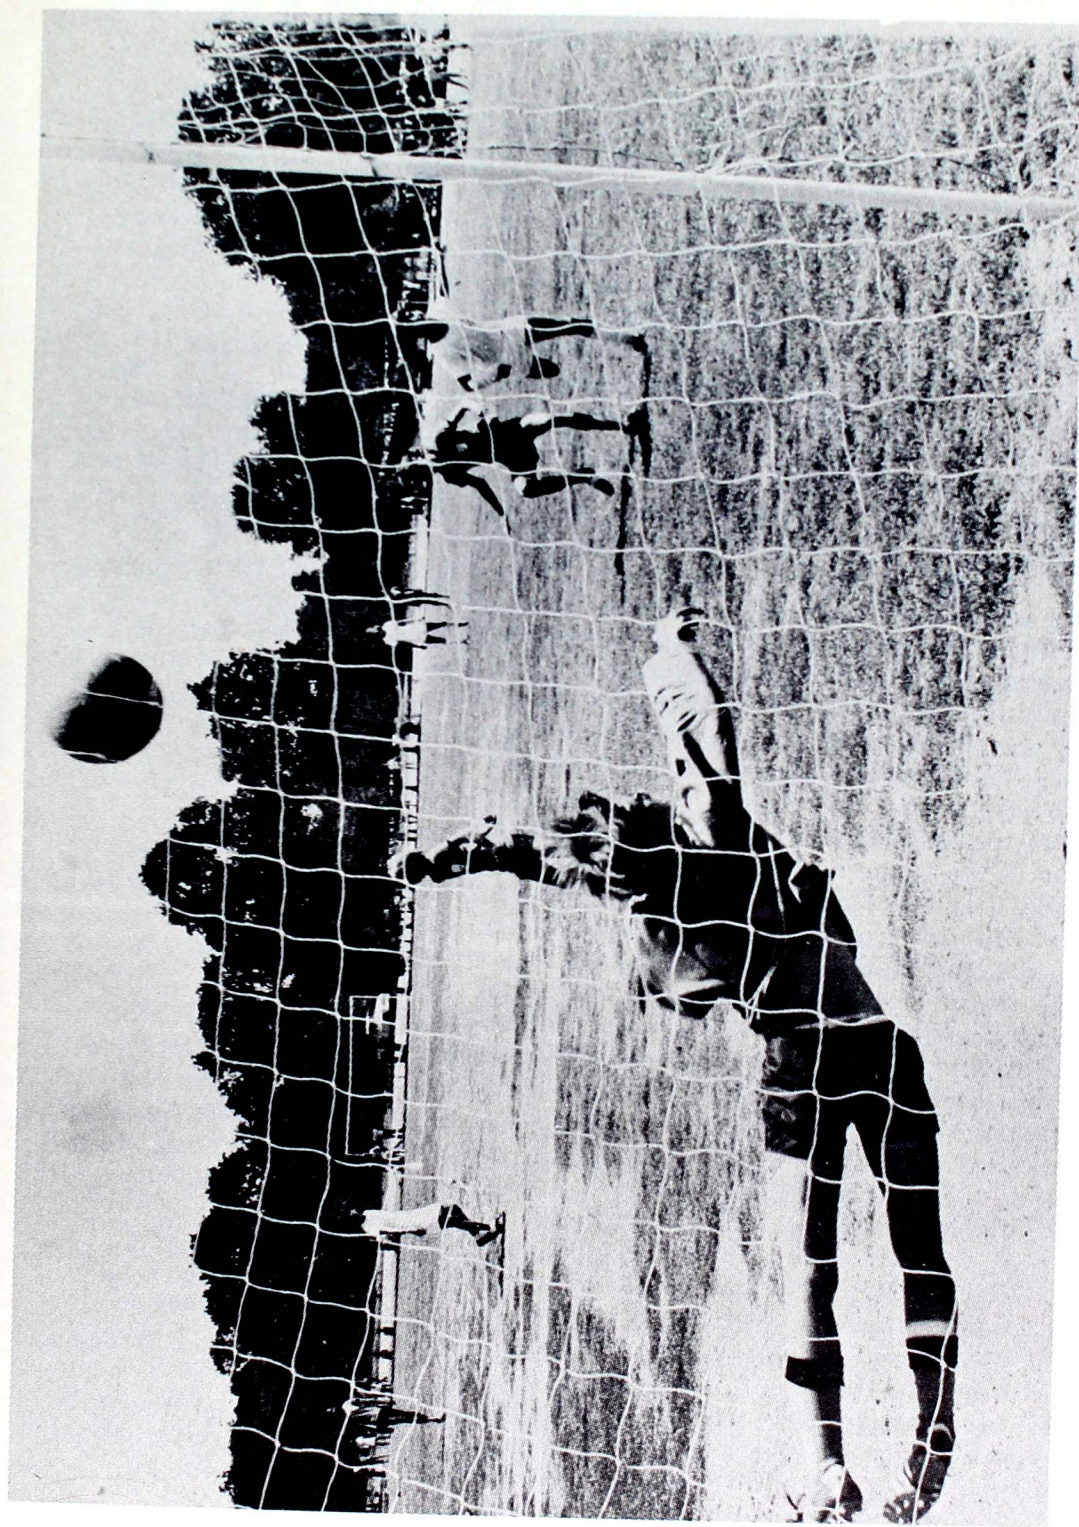

The number of players has increased by 100% each year for the past 5 years. It would seem hard to match that growth rate as the numbers grow, but calling around the various leagues and associations in the area it seems that from a figure of about 6000 players in mid 1971, the projected figure for mid 1972 is around 18,000, or 300% growth. Whether that figure is reached or not, at least 1972 will show a massive growth and soon soccer will be the second most popular participation sport in the area.

Everywhere one turns, from the collegiate to the school leagues, from pee-wees to the over 30's leagues, from little girls to mothers, teams are springing up everywhere. If all the players marched past together the parade would be bigger than the opening ceremony for the Munich Olympics.

The success of the Dallas Tornado on the field must be linked to this growth. Tornado attendances have increased by 60%. Most of the new fans have come from among the parents of the boys who have recently taken to the sport like ducks to water and who have brushed this enthusiasm off on their elders. According to coach Ron Newman there is a definite link between the growth rate in the local leagues one year and Tornado attendances the following year.

At least the home fans had something to cheer about as their heroes took the NASL title after exciting play-off games with Rochester and Atlanta. What was a joy to see was the publicity given by the local media, even when the American football season had begun. In previous seasons it was unusual to see news films of home games but suddenly the sportcasters were enthusiastically flying about the country recording the road games as well.

STATE REPORTS

The future of soccer in this country is through the schools and colleges. One envisions strong collegiate leagues in the future, due to the demand for a university education prior to turning professional, and these leagues may be as strong as some of the smaller national leagues in Europe.

The Texas Collegiate Soccer League added 5 new members this season and operated four divisions of four teams each. S M U, Le Tourneau, North Texas State, Pan American and Texas A & I entered the league and it is good to see the number of boys who have graduated from the local junior ranks playing for Texas colleges. Texas Tech, S M U, Texas and St. Marys came out on top in each of their divisions, and in the well attended semi-finals at Armstrong Field on the SMU campus, the Mustangs, in their first season, defeated the Tech Red Raiders on penalty kicks after an extra-time tie, while Texas accounted for St. Mary's. In the final, the experience of the Longhorns finally took its toll on the Mustangs 5-2 and Texas retained their title and won the new Governors Cup.

Last year saw a junior high league spring up with 17 teams, and this fall the High School league, which two years ago was limited to 7 local private schools, had 28 teams entered. At the time of writing, North Dallas, Thomas Jefferson, Fort Worth Country Day and Richardson seemed set to reach the semi-finals. Last year St. Marks defeated Richardson High for the area title.

In the twelve member associations of North Texas the patter of tiny feet has increased to the roar of an army marching up and down the soccer fields. Cooperation with local parks departments is starting to get results and a big expansion in soccer fields. The Richardson association increased from 12 to 60 teams in one season; Irving noted an introduction of leagues for over 30's, girl scouts, and even for mothers, with a trio of Swedes, Eric Nordstrom, Jan Book and Arthur Wennberg, leading the way with enthusiasm. While many of the young teams deserve mention, none is feared more than the Pirates, out of Oak Cliff, reputed to be 25 year old midgets, who, coached by Bob Whitmer, have mopped up all the opposition in the state in the freshman ranks for the past few seasons.

A new name was written onto the State Championship trophy last summer. The Dallas Rangers, a very progressive amateur club, led by Bob Evans, won the Dallas Soccer Association, the North Texas, and the State Championship as well as the knock-out competition.

All this competition needs referees and the North Texas Referees Association graduated approximately 100 new officials in the last twelve months. Bob Evans was appointed referee instructor, assisted by Ron Griffith, while Mike Jacobs has started get interest growing in collegiate refereeing. The association has managed to provide officials all over the northern part of the state and start up chapters in Lubbock and Wichita Falls. Wichita Falls has started a small high school league and also a pee-wee league sponsored by the local Boys Club.

If anybody has any doubts as to whether soccer has made it or not in North Texas one need only look at the community newspapers which often give every detail of local high school games and banquets and championship days for the local leagues. For the second summer, the state association also published "Soccertax" which was distributed free to all leagues and players who requested it, in a move to fill the communications gap. For the first time, Tornado play-off games were carried on the radio and with the new found energy of the Booster club under incoming president Fred Talkington, this should be a regular feature for all road games in the future due to pressure from the fans.

SOUTH TEXAS

Soccer continued to flourish in Houston and San Antonio in 1971, with twenty-eight teams participating in both local and state competitions. The Aztecas (Houston) Club beat St. Mary's University (San Antonio) for the State Championship 1970-71.

In junior soccer, the Houston Junior Soccer Association had fifty-six (56) teams participating in four major divisions: A Division to 19 years. B Division 13 and 14 years, C Division, 10, 11, 12 years, and D Division, 7, 8, 9 years. There were teams of five and six year olds formed but not in active competition. The Junior Association also had ten high school and nine junior high school teams in school competitions.

The most outstanding statistic was the fantastic growth in the registration of players, from 468 in 1970-71 to 1250 in 1971-72. A Junior Referee's Association was formed to satisfy the need for officials in C & D Divisions and 38 junior and high school students attended seminars.

Harris County and the City of Houston Parks and Recreation Department, and the Spring Branch School District were extremely helpful in providing soccer fields.

Perhaps the year's most commendable event was a game between the local disc jockeys and Clear Creek High School Soccer Team organized by the boys themselves with the proceeds going towards scholarship funds.

Mr. Henry Walters has been an outstanding and devoted Junior Soccer President in developing and guiding the association for season 1971-72. The interest by parents is growing even though publicity has been on a low key. The most serious problem has been a lack of coaches and the consequent turning away of boys wishing to play soccer.

The South Texas State Soccer Football Association Committee for season 1971-72 is as follows: Ben Newman (State President and Secretary), Al Blair (State Treasurer), Dick Chamberlain (President, Houston Amateur Soccer League), J. K. Fuerst (Secretary, Houston Amateur Soccer League), Geo. Price (President, Alamo Soccer Lg), Ray Maxwell (Secretary, Alamo Soccer Lg.), Milton Aimi (State Junior Soccer Commissioner), H. Walters (President, Houston Junior Soccer)

1970-71 Results in the Houston and San Antonio major leagues were as follows:—

STATE REPORTS

UTAH

Many changes have taken place during the past year, including the formation of a separate referees' association, an increase in referees' fees, and the recognition of the high school program in 4 new high schools in the state. A coaching clinic, co-sponsored by the University of Utah, was held with over 100 in attendance. It was conducted by Bruno Gerzelli, a former professional player in Italy.

One of the highlights of the past year was the Rocky Mountain Championship between Olympia of Colorado and Sport Club United of Utah. The game was played in Salt Lake City, with United winning 4 goals to 1. Keith Fisher, Utah's Player of the Year, scored all 4 goals for United. This is the 2nd time in 10 years that the Utah champion has defeated the Colorado champion.

Certain problems remain — especially the shortage of playing fields. We are working with the local school district to play some games on school fields. We have acquired a new soccer field at the University of Utah, and through the co-operation of Salt Lake County Recreation, we expect to have a lighted field this summer, which will enable us to extend our season.

In the State High School Championship, 25 teams were involved, representing 15 schools, with top place going to Olympus who beat Provo 4-2 in the final. This marks the 16th year of independent high school soccer in Utah.

In the Utah Soccer League, the 1970-71 champions and runners-up were:

Division I: Alemania, Brigham Young University

Division II: University of Utah, Kickers

Division III: Utah State University, Germania.

The standard of play in the league is high, and it is particularly encouraging to see the many local American boys coming up through the high school leagues who go on to play in the senior league.

The standings at mid-season 1971-72 in Division I show 2 teams battling for the lead: Sport Club United (State Champions 1969-70) are in first place and B.Y.U. (70-71 Runner-Up) is in second place, having lost one game to Sport Club United.

In Division II, the Vikings, oldest established club in Utah, were relegated at the end of last season, but are showing that their rightful place is back in the First Division. They have scored 38 goals in winning 6 games (over 6 goals per game), with only 3 goals being scored against them.

In Division III, the Bountiful Wanderers and the Clearfield Job Corps teams are pushing each other for promotion neither having lost a game.

WASHINGTON

After eight months of active soccer and with the championships decided, soccer is still booming with the Junior Association having expanded to close to 1,000 clubs. Now the eastern and southern parts are being invaded with clinics and are showing fine progress.

The youth exchange games with British Columbia, Canada, have grown to such an extent that it is impossible to accommodate all wishing to take part, but plans are underway for similar exchange games in other parts of the Northwest. The Tacoma Cheney Studs 15-16 year olds made its second trip to England, and hope to set a precedent for other youth groups in the area.

The Washington State Seniors started its 1970 season with six clubs in the major division and nine clubs in the second division. The season closed with the annual 32 team Five-a-Side, when a surprise club, Mount Pleasant Legion of Vancouver, B.C., defeated the favorite Seattle Heidelberg club for the title.

The Sons of Norway Vikings won the first league for the Roosevelt Trophy; in the second league, Triumph Continental won the Puget Sound Navigation Trophy.

In the league play-off, Vikings beat Triumph for the Eddie Craggs Trophy and the right to represent the state against Portland Germania, a game which the Vikings lost 5-4 in overtime. In the second division, which is also played in two different competitions, the first league for the Brown Brothers Trophy was won by Auburn, and Tacoma won the Chidgay Memorial Trophy for the second league. Tacoma won the Referees' Trophy in the play-off.

With three clubs—Vikings, Heidelberg and Ranier—in the National Open Challenge Cup, Heidelberg upset the surprised Vikings to represent the state against California. After a good win over San Jose they went to Los Angeles, only to lose to the Yugoslav Americans.

We are very proud of having promoted games involving West Ham of England and also of Seattle Select's 3-1 victory over the United States Olympic Team.

STATE REPORTS

WISCONSIN

A national soccer "first" was held at Marinette, Wisconsin June 5, 1971. The event was the first Soccer Shrine Benefit game ever held in the U.S. Fashioned after the college football East-West shrine game, the game featured the Marinette-Menominee soccer club against the Oshkosh Titans.

Tony Anselms, Chairman of the Wisconsin State Development Committee, has appointed a full development committee; his committees are very active in youth development.

Mike Kabanica, Wisconsin Soccer Association Commissioner, completed Detmar Cramer's Course for soccer coaches and attained a "C" rating. He serves as Wisconsin Soccer Games Commissioner, also as Chairman of the Wisconsin Soccer Association Indoor Tournament.

Several new youth soccer leagues have been formed in Wisconsin:—

Milwaukee Public High School Club League (10 teams)

Oshkosh Recreation Department League (8 teams)

Southern Wisconsin Lakes Jr. High School (7 teams)

Madison Youth League (26 teams)

To help ease the shortage of qualified officials a soccer referee and linesman soccer class was conducted in Milwaukee by the Milwaukee Technical College in January 1972. The class instructor was Mike Wuertz a F.I.F.A. rated referee.

The 1971 Wisconsin All Star Team, as selected by the Northwest News with the co-operation of the Soccer Press & Radio Association, Soccer Writers and Radio Announcers, was: goal: C. Alvarez (Polonia); defenders: J. Bocwinski (Polonia), H. Stemke (Brewers), J. Gibson (Bavarians), A. Krupa (Polonia), W. Ziaja (Bavarians); forwards: R. Alvarez (Polonia), L. Lanser (Verdi), J. Kresnovik (U/Serbians), A. Markopoulos (Miller H.L.), W. Wessels (Bavarians).

Manager of the year was Erich Ziaja, and coach awards went to Leroy Polzin (Kickers) and Stan Stadler (Polonia.).

Get more from your game!

Here's the soccer book every player and coach has been waiting for! Lavishly illustrated with thrilling action photographs and clear diagrams, it analyzes the role of each player, tells how to plan individual and team strategy, and describes basic and advanced plays. It gives the first really useful coverage in book form of the key element of the game—how to kick a soccer ball. And it proves conclusively that soccer is not a game of brute strength; intelligence and teamwork make all the difference. Included are complete rules and an index.
